

Name: §B-[redacted] (previously Dezine Greyson)

Gender: N/A (previously male)

Age (last recorded): 31 years old

Ethnicity (previous): Caucasian, white, idk

Classification: cognitohazard, alive, U.A.S experiment (semi-successful)

Location: The Cognitosphere

Summarization of The Cognitosphere:

A dimension comprised of empty space and “thought bubbles”, the optical manifestation of an individuals thoughts. §B-[redacted] is able to interact with these “thought bubbles”. As currently recorded, there is no entrance to this dimension, and nothing is able to interact with it (pure outerversal)

Backstory:

As a child, Dezine Greyson was always cheerful and outgoing, deemed “the bright one” by any adult near him. His mother and father were both nurses, working at St. John's hospital, which would be about 4 blocks from Dezine's home. He had a sister who was 1 year younger than him, that loved to draw. At night, Dezine's sister would have frequent nightmares, usually expressing what she saw through drawings. As a young teenager, Dezine would help around house along with his dad, usually working as a sidekick handyman, creating wonderful wood contraptions for her sister, to help with the nightmares. As an older teenager, he had to work 2 part time jobs to afford college, due to his parents getting laid off, and still having to receive a loan from the bank to enroll. Whilst attending college, Dezine would read up on newspapers, detailing of the wonderful work of a government funded organization named the Universal Agency of Sciences, or U.A.S. Dezine would also be working 3 part time jobs at this time. At around 25, when he had finished his college, he got hired at a car dealership, landing many sales, and eventually getting promoted to a managerial position. At this point in time, his father was diagnosed with Parkinsons disease, and his mother had to work multiple shifts with alot of overtime, all to support the immense costs of college for DeZine's college. However, at the age of 31, while on a midnight stroll, DeZine would get kidnapped by scientists of the U.A.S. upon wake, DeZine would find himself strapped to a bed, with wires plunged deep into his brain, hooked up to a computer. Deemed §B-094, the experiment was to learn any possible way to harness electrochemical reactions, and by visualizing them through computers, they would be able to research it. However, when they had began siphoning DeZine's electrochemicals (thoughts, memories, etc) into the computer, they hadn't realized they were subsequently tearing away his soul, and just before the transfer, DeZine's soul glitched out of reality, and thus, §B-[redacted] was born. When they entered The Cognitosphere for the first time, they were confused. §B-[redacted] couldn't make out where they were nor why they could see these bubbles, filled with different images and such. All they could think about was their deep hatred for the scientists that had made them become who they are, and so, they sank into a deep depression, unable to come to terms with what they are, wishing to die, and wanting to be forgotten. Forgotten. That was the final wish they had. To be forgotten. And so, whenever §B-[redacted] was thought of, they would attack their "thought bubble" and kill them. In the victim's brain, they saw §B-[redacted], but could do nothing, as they would be mauled violently to their death.

Powerscaling or smth:

AP: multiversal (outside of canoninity, they can rend apart the multiverse, but they don't, they attack only the victim who thinks of them. The whole strength capable of rending apart the multiverse is canon though)

Speed: always matches the victim, and can even exceed it (so don't think Wally West is safe lil bro, but if you have teleportation you should be fine, they ain't scp-096)

Durability: outerversal (exists within a different dimension, that being The Cognitosphere, and also generally cannot be killed unless they are forgotten in every instance)

Stamina: limitless (they never tire, they never rest. Not until you die)

Range: limitless (since they can interact with any mind in their dimension)

Intelligence: above average human level

Weapons: their claws

Powers and abilities or smth:

-durability negation (it literally will kill anything and everything that thinks of it, no exceptions)

Resistances:

-everything. Immune to every possible attack you can think of. Because there's only one kill condition. But that condition ain't easy, I'll explain.

Kill condition:

So, §B-[redacted] can only die when all instances of them are forgotten. However, just wiping the omniverse wont do the trick. You see, in my cosmology, there is the past, present, and future omniverse, meaning not only do you have to make everyone in the omniverse forget about §B-[redacted], you also have to have your past and future self do that too. But wait, theres more! Theres practically infinite instances of past and future omniverses for every second, down to the start and end of the omniverse. Each second, the present omniverse begins to reach ever so slightly closer to the end of the omniverse. So yeah, its a little tough to kill §B-[redacted].

Likes:

His family, being forgotten, dying

Dislikes:

Being thought of, his family dying, being remembered

Why you literally cant kill them:

1. They dont die unless you fulfill their kill condition, as stated above. READ IT.
2. No, to the person whos ability can enter any dimension, you cant just destroy The Cognitosphere, that just puts them in an even harder place to kill them.