

GENERAL INFO

Name :: Valory Eschoire

Gender :: Cis Male

Pronouns :: He/Him

Age :: 28

D.O.B :: April 6th

Height :: 6ft / 183cm

Weight :: 162 lbs / 73 kg

PERSONAL INFO

[Easygoing | Keen listener |
Humble]

[Forthright | Reticent |
Adamant]

Despite growing up in a reputable and sophisticated household, Valory lives among the working class with a sense of humility. With his job, he's efficient and maintains focus, but allows himself to act more carelessly when he's at home. He vastly enjoys finding bizarre ways in which he can deliberately blow through his inheritance, as he sees no real value in it. Although he's recognized as a hazardous madman by his fellow neighbors, he still puts in the effort to greet them with an affable smile.

Valory is a rather reticent man whose face is usually covered by a welding mask. Some may find him menacing due to this fact, but he doesn't feel the need to over explain himself and only speaks up when absolutely necessary. He finds humor in watching others paint themselves into a corner, especially if it's his pretentious twin brother Siobhan. The rivalry between them acts as a motivator for Valory, and brings out a side of him that is typically not seen by many. They are almost constantly at odds with each other, striving to prove the other wrong. His slight intolerance towards his brother's claims stems from a past incident that the two of them remember differently.

BIOGRAPHY

CHILDHOOD:

- The Eschoire family are members of high society. Valory was raised by his rather snobbish mother and father, alongside his identical twin brother Siobhan. A good handful of maids and butlers also resided in the manor.
- The twins were an inseparable pair of imps as children, until they stumbled upon the history of their family's honorable lineage. Their interest in the Code of Chivalry helped shape them up to become two respectable young lads.
- Fed up with how they were constantly lumped together and viewed as one person, the brothers decided to explore individuality. Eventually, the twins dealt with being compared and mistaken for one another more frequently, and were no longer treated equally.
- Valory found an interest in tinkering, as well as constructing models for his brother's ideas. Since he'd have something to show for it, Valory would receive most of the recognition and inadvertently outshine Siobhan as the more promising twin. This was the start of the rift in their relationship.
- For some time, Valory was unaware of his brother's frustrations. He genuinely admired Siobhan's designs and would make sure to credit him whenever he received praise, but stopped once he realized how little adults actually cared about what he had to say.
- He formed a closer bond with one of the maids and preferred to seek comfort from her rather than his own overbearing mother. As someone who kept most things to herself, she would lend Valory an ear whenever he felt unheard. Despite being considered as a person of insignificance by many, she greatly influenced Valory's life and he thought of her as someone worth protecting.

THE INCIDENT:

- The case revolves around his father's murder, with the two main suspects being the victim's wife and the reserved maid.
- Due to the twin's biases towards the two suspects, it gave them both a narrow perception of the incident. Their testimonies contradicted each other's, causing the two of them to break out in a heated and immature dispute. It resulted in the brothers being deemed as unreliable witnesses, and were dragged off the stand.

- The trial came to a close with the maid receiving a guilty verdict.
- His perception of power was warped by the injustice he saw in that courtroom. He couldn't fully understand why the accused didn't put up a fight. It made him dwell on the possibility that it ended up this way because of his own mindless assertions. He clenched his mouth shut and turned away from his brother without giving them a single glance.

AFTERMATH-PRESENT:

- With the inheritance passed down from their deceased father split between his two sons, the twins went their separate ways once they reached adulthood. The strain in their relationship continued to linger.
- Valory attends university and graduates with a metalworking degree.
- Discerning the inheritance as "dirty money", Valory finds different ways to waste it with all due disrespect. 😏
- Later on, he takes an interest in a flyer promoting the Rookie Law Program. He gives it a chance in hopes of changing the corrupted system. Little did he know that his brother shared a similar idea. There was no way he was going to let himself be struck down again, especially not by that ugly faced bastard!

Likes	Dislikes
❖ One-pot meals	❖ Puppets
❖ Crafts	❖ Swindlers
❖ Tournaments	❖ Mom's letters

EXTRA INFO

- Generally wears his welding gear even outside of work.
- Will use anything as a shield (barrel lids, tables, cabinet doors, etc.)

- His cooking concoctions appear unsightly, but the taste is adequate!
- He treats his home like a warehouse.
- Doesn't mind working overtime and stays up late during day offs.
- Reeks like wildfire smoke.
- Comes up with different methods that'll cut his brother's visits short.
- Has been reported as a suspicious individual on multiple occasions.
- Pretends to sleep to try and avoid certain interactions.

MUN INFO

T O K K I

Any Pronouns | CST | tokki#4813

HOWDYYY!!! 🧑

I'M A SLOW WRITER... but I'm a huge sucker for gags and hcs!!
I like fooling around and um...💩💩💩emojis are the best!!!!!!!

