

WdKA Climate Movement

The WDKA Climate Movement is a network of humans, located in the Willem De Kooning Academy and open for all souls to join. We are a sister group of Erasmus Change.

What we stand for:

- Human-induced climate change is real. We oppose the denial of facts. We base our stances on scientifically obtained knowledge.
- Climate action should be taken right now. Every day of delay makes the climate crisis less likely to be solved.
- The climate transition has to be just. Polluters pay. Wealth and income inequality as a result of climate change must be prevented.
- We demand system change. Responsibility must not be put only on the individual - we need political action as well. Involvement both within and outside the current political landscape is required. Civil disobedience is an acceptable form of political action.
- We are a peaceful movement. We do not allow the use of violence in our name.
- The involvement of creativity. This is crucial in fighting the climate crisis. The power to speak to people deeply within their hearts is invaluable towards changing destructive mindsets. Innovative ways of thinking should be used to accomplish system change.

We are fighting for climate justice. We acknowledge the severity of the situation, thus we are terrified but yet excited and hopeful. We will act on our goals by doing whatever it takes, and raising our voices for those who cannot. Together we can change the system within and outside of the WDKA.

Hope to see you soon, before it's too late.
