

Subject Line: I nearly gave up...

A few years ago I bought myself a new video game... After playing it for some time It started to get hard.

I had to fight with a final boss...

I was so excited but after a few minutes,

Things started to get difficult.

I said to myself,

"I won't leave this game until I kill the final boss"

After lots of failed trials, I finally got to the point when...

I won with the final boss!

I was super excited and proud that I didn't quit.

The same example applies to freelancing.

You might have noticed that when it comes to writing a copy or finding potential clients your mind wants to escape the problem,

You will want to grab the phone from your desk and scroll on social media,

Maybe because you don't know these secret tips about freelancing,

And you can't solve the problem because of your ignorance,

But If you can find solutions,

You will win.
