

Scenario 1

George is a really busy student. He works 20 hours a week and he is a full time student. He has a paper due in class, but he doesn't have enough time to write it. So, he decides to purchase a paper online. He goes to a "paper mill" (a site that creates papers for school) and he buys a paper. He doesn't need an "A" in the class, but he thinks the paper is good enough for a "B." He puts his name on the paper and turns it in.

Scenario 2

Kelly needs to write a paper for her class. Since she wants to get an "A" in the class, she wants to have perfect grammar. So, she decides to use an online translator. She types the sentences into the translator in her native language and she copies and pastes them into her paper in English.

Scenario 3

Jake has an in-class essay on Wednesday, and he really needs to get a good grade on it so he can transfer to a good school. He decides to write an essay for the test at home and memorize it. That way, when he goes to class, he already knows what he will write and how he will write it.
