Possible Mesas:

“Latin American Keywords Project,” Yolanda Martínez-San Miguel et al., organizers (see full list of papers above; this one’s ready to go)

“The Economics and Representation of Academia: It’s Personal and It’s Political”; organizer, Kristina Boylan; theory readings

“Activism and Scholarship”: participants: Briggs, Laura, “Activisms and Epistemologies: Problems for Transnational History”; Pineda, Baron, “Human Rights Imperialism? Culture and Rights in the Americas”; de la Dehesa, Rafael, “Brazil without Homophobia: Sexual Policy and the Lula Administration”

“Spiritism and Politics”; participants, Schraeder, Lia, “The Spirits of Revolution”; Roman, Reinaldo, “Spirits of the Antilles: Cuba and the Political Imaginary of Spiritism in the Years between Empires”

Empires, Colonialism: We could do separate sessions on Cooper and Stoler; or try to mix-n-match the Stoler, Cooper, and Burton suggestions to produce one or two major mesas setting out the historiographic parameters we are working in. Would be ideal if we could pair these readings w/ those of Latin American scholars writing at the same time or in response to these pieces.
