What did it mean for you to play football at Midview?

Playing for Midview was an honor. Growing up and going to games, I knew how much football meant to the school and how it brought the community together. It meant the world to get on that stage and develop relationships with teammates, coaches, and fans that will last a lifetime.

How do you feel looking back at your high school football experience?

Looking back on my high school experience, I'm grateful for everyone that was a part of it. My teammates and our coaches came together and we accomplished some really special things. We were never satisfied, but we always had a ton of fun along the way. It made all the work we put in worth it.

What was your most memorable game as a Middie?

We had quite a few crazy games, but the most memorable was when we played Avon in the 2014 regional semifinal. From the inclement weather, to the sequence of events in the 4th Q and OT, to beating that team twice in one year, it felt like a movie.

What coach inspired you to be the man you are today?

The coach that inspired me to be the man I am is my dad, who was also my position coach. He balanced being tough on me and being proud of me better than I ever could have asked. The coaching from him and the entire staff definitely molded me as a player and as a man.

What are you most proud of from your days as a Middie?

I'm very proud of the culture we instilled for our team. We went from constant underdogs my junior year to constant favorites my senior year and we never let that affect us. We controlled what we could control, never backed down, and gave our community a team to get behind. We left Midview with no regrets.
