The Listing of Ways to Take Action and Be Informed offers many ways to be engaged. Here are some highlighted items for this e-newsletter edition.

Addressing Voting Challenges

We see efforts to make voting more challenging from the US Supreme Court, several state legislatures, the NC Board of Elections as well as the NC General Assembly. However, there are groups throughout our nation, state and region that are working to help you navigate voting.

One of the resources this Social Justice e-newsletter will continue to offer is Ways to Help You and Others Prepare to Vote. Some of the other resources related to voting, including ways to learn and take action, are listed here.

1. Indivisible Asheville/WNC Opportunities to Be Engaged: This volunteer-run voter promotion organization offers many ways to be involved. Their Communications Team needs an additional writer to create short e-blasts, a social media monitor to respond to messages, and a media relations specialist. Contact them here. Their Events Team is busier than ever — and needs safety marshals, medics, AV folks, project managers and volunteer coordinators. Contact them here.
2. Help Wanted for WNC Votes!: In addition to needing volunteers to sign up for voter outreach opportunities, which are updated as available at WNCvotes.org, they need additional team members for their Canvassing, Tabling, and Youth Outreach teams. Team members help with planning, promotion, and management of that team's voter outreach activities. Interested volunteers may fill out the short form here or email info@wncvotes.org.
3. Good Trouble WNC Announces New Website: In an effort to provide a better sense of community while maintaining private yet easy access to events and activities of this organization, Good Trouble WNC has created this website. Get details about how this website came about and how you can join this effort here.
