In this episode, we discuss some tax research presented at the 2022 Midyear Meeting of the American Taxation Association. The two papers we focus on are:

Does corporate tax avoidance affect firm productivity? by Spyridon Gkikopoulos, Edward Lee, Konstantinos Stathopoulos

Check Your Attitude: An Examination of Companies' Attitude toward Tax Enforcement by Hannah Judd, Sean McGuire, Connie Weaver, and Junwei Xia.

Concepts covered

- Taxes and productivity
- Tax disclosures
- Corporate taxpayers' approaches to controversy

Short answer/essay or in-class discussion questions

1. In your own words, explain how corporate tax avoidance could spur productivity, especially related to intangible assets.
2. Companies' tax burdens can be reduced through either reductions in the statutory tax rate or through deductions and credits targeted at specific behavior. Brainstorm which of these approaches might be more effective in spurring productivity.
3. Discuss the potential pros and cons of a corporation disclosing an adversarial attitude toward the tax authority.
4. As an investor, would you prefer a corporation take an adversarial or a cooperative approach to dealing with the tax authority? Justify your response.
