

South Lanarkshire College

22/06/2017

On 21 June 2017, iamJamieP, the candidate for Scottish Labour Party in Central Scotland paid a visit to South Lanarkshire College in East Kilbride to deliver a short speech to a group of students.

“Good morning, thank you so much for allowing me to speak at this truly wonderful college this morning. Some of the things that come under the South Lanarkshire College ethos are: promoting equality and diversity, being passionate about our work, continual improvement, community and social value and something which stuck out to me above all was listening and acting on feedback.

In many ways, those things are what the Scottish Labour Party stand for, too. On the 6th of July, people take to the polls to vote and I hope that young people will swing the results. Young people are the people who will lead tomorrow and it is the job of the Scottish Labour Party to pave the way to that ‘tomorrow’.

How will we do that? Well, if elected, I will make sure that every young person has the right to access education regardless of their needs. I will fight to ensure that education continues to be cost-free to the student. I will make it my overall goal to ensure young people are on the top of the agenda at all times. After all, it is you, the students of today that will be the face of tomorrow.

Thank you.”
