Washington loses its last woodland caribou January 25, 2019 Washington
SFGate
...Washington and the contiguous United States have lost their last woodland caribou, as British Columbia officials have captured and shipped the one surviving animal to a breeding facility in Revelstoke, B.C... The small, quiet, reclusive woodland caribou have received far less local and global attention than Washington's photogenic orca whales...