F29 - JOINT EFFORT PROGRAMS BUILDING - Owned by NPC KAMEN TROY (RONAN) - PUBLIC

Although not technically an official part of any specific school or college, many recognize the strong skills and education which comes from working with Makernet.

The building itself was bought and is still owned by Kamen Troy, the founder of Makernet, which he left to the inventors of Makernet to use for whatever they chose.

F30 - AQUARIUS ELEMENTAL ACADEMY - PUBLIC - Owned by NPCs RUE SORORIA & MICHELANGELO ACCARDI (TK & RAPH)

Following the first few years after the war, Rue Sororia and her uncle Michelangelo Accardi, opened the first elemental school, Aquarius Elemental Academy, in the hopes of educating elementals of all ages on the origins of their powers and how to wield them in safer ways, for both the planet and themselves. It started off small, meant as a safe haven for elemental kids and adults that finally had a space to be themselves and wanted to learn; but since then, the reach of the Academy has spread all over Caelum, with one being in the Silver District, of Glenys City! There are classes for non-elementals who want to understand their elemental peers better. In recent months, unnatural elemental citizens have been employed to teach classes for unnatural elementals as well.

In this time, Aegis and Epoch have also brought on teachers to help further tutor their members, both natural and natural elementals, on utilizing their elements safely.

The Academy offers classes for anyone, and are free so students may enroll and drop out whenever they'd like. There are part-time and full-time schedules, and are all structured to focus on experience rather than age with several difficulty levels. The Academy offers both practical classes and study-based classes, and ones designed to mingle the elements so students can learn from each other as well. Each level has a graduation that clears the student to the next appropriate level, until students are considered Advanced (typically gaining proficiency with the advanced techniques).

As Unnatural Elemental conflicts got bigger, so did Silver Orca's insistence on covering that news truthfully. It employed Unnaturals without batting an eye, making sure they were as protected as possible while on the job.

They've unfortunately lost a few reporters on jobs over the years, but Mischa is still proud to say her station is still thriving and honest, unafraid of what this new world might bring to them when without risk, change will never come.

The workshop doubles as his home and often gets vandalized, but the inside is cozy and welcoming.

G94 - LUNARIS TECH LAB, VISION'S PEAK - Owned by TK

Lunaris Tech was founded by AXEL BAROS (NPC), a member of Aegis' Science Department team, a few years after Aegis' formation and as an extension of the GCRC. He sought to take the technology humans had used against elementals during all the years of war, and recreate them in a way meant to benefit elementals: To strengthen and siphon their energy in safe and sustainable ways that would benefit them, rather than drain them. The first few years were slow and rocky, with many elementals hesitant in contributing to technology that used them, but in the last decade, Lunaris Tech has grown into a known facility with many successful breakthroughs including devices meant to make elemental energy last longer, and ambrosia, the most popular prescription drug to help ease elemental side effects.

Back in 5320, Lunaris Tech suffered a great loss of its lead design and research team due to a devastating accident. Years of individual and collective information and tests were either lost or destroyed, and set Lunaris Tech several years back in advancement on their bigger projects. Phoebe Laisrén, Sara Adrian, Antonio Tobias, Laurel Rahmen, Neil Sepperin, Sierra Lowe, Matthew Lewis, Maya Valentine were the noted victims.

NPC CLYDE SANTOS joined the team about one year ago, bringing with him a foundation of knowledge on the Unnatural Elements that had been missing. With his help, Lunaris Tech has been able to create prototype tools to help measure unnatural element effects and development in a person, and perhaps, in the future, a way of analyzing bloodwork and genetic make up to permit the same level of healthcare that natural elementals have. Beyond this, he recently has been moved up to quality control for devices that get distributed to Aegis' government supply.
