What specific information was of greatest value to you?

I was only able to attend the first few virtual meetings but the desire for the district to have a common goal was nice to see.
Collaboration allowed for immediate processing of information and opportunity to be heard in the setting.
attending AMLE. Making straw designs about new steps
The discussions around how to help students the most.
The discussion around student voice and choice as well as being intentional with how we use our time for SEL and relationship building with students and staff.
Any and all information that supported designated time for SEL.

I appreciated the time to discuss with the committee and reviewing continually
It was explained and laid out to be accessible for those of us who are not MS staff.
Attending the conference and seeing what other schools are doing to support their middle school students.
I enjoyed the book that we read, but I felt we didn't utilize or discussed in the way we could have. There are many things in there that caused me to change course in my own teaching practices during the school year.
I liked have the small group work, it was hard on Chromebooks though it would have been easier if we'd been in person.
I did like that we met after school so we didn't have to get subs. I also like that the need for specific middle school training is wanted and needed. We teach a totally different student that doesn't fall in the elementary or high school world and we're often shoved in one or the other for training. However, I wish it was offered at another time. Right after school ends is so hard for us mentally. We're done, our brains are tired. Since it's an optional training offering it in August might be better especially if people know a significant time ahead to plan their vacations and child care around.
all of it
