Subject: Will going slow and steady really improve your finances?

Body:

Hi Andrew,

My name is Sam Kim and I'm so happy you took the first step to being a financial master!

You are now part of an amazing community that has one trick up their sleeve that nobody seems to take any notice of anymore.

This one trick can allow you to transform your life financially but it can also do something else that is far more beneficial.

It will ease all of the pressure that you might have already put yourself under. You might have thought:

"Oh but I've left it too late to sort my finances out, they're a mess....."

Why would I start to invest now, everybody says it's best to do it as early as possible. I've missed my chance...."

But this is not true. To help you to get the most from your finances I teach lessons that I have learned over the years to help you take control once and for all.

I'll send you an email tomorrow with my most pivotal and simple step by step guidance that you can put into action right away in order to begin your journey to securing your financial future.

Best,

Tae Kim

PS. Reply to this email with any burning questions you might have, I read every reply.

Subject: The sneaky financial trick that will blow your finances through the roof.

Body:

As I crawled out from under the covers, squinting as the bright beam of sunlight shone through the window, I realised...

I was still in my parents basement. So it wasn't just a dream.

Me and my wife had moved in with them some months earlier after I had left the military, but it was only meant to be for a while. Or that's what I had hoped.

While I was still with my parents, I started to learn about wealth creation and how to make all of our earned money go further. I tried putting the principles I learned into practice and along with making my own tweaks, I started to see my wealth grow slowly at first, but then faster and faster as time passed.

I began my journey making small changes that in my head, I thought could never work. I began to make notes about quirky ideas and challenges that I read about. Still all the while thinking that these could never really make someone wealthy.

After all, why would gurus and billionaires actually tell you the blueprint they used to get wealthy, surely if that was the case. Wouldn't everyone be wealthy?

But I stuck with it, working through principle after principle. Making the odd tweak here and there to make it work in a situation that was not what the author had intended. How to make it work for the rest of us.

Working on building my wealth one principal at a time has allowed me to have now built my personal net worth to where I can be financially stable and based on the investments and other financial vehicles I have acquired.

I don't say this to brag or boast about how much money I have but rather to show that the simple and sneaky principles that I have learned from the ultra wealthy can be put into practice to create real world wealth to allow you to live life as a member of the financially free.

Subject: 1 SIMPLE STEP TO BUILDING YOUR FINANCIAL FOUNDATION NOW

Body:

Did you know that 99% of people never get to the point of financial freedom because of one simple flaw.

I have found that there is one major step that will allow you to be more financially free, but the scary part is that, even though it is so easy to implement, most never succeed.

Why?

Because they never take action....

Are you an action taker? Good, then let's begin.

The number one step to build your financial foundation is to "Prioritise financial independence over everything else".

Millionaires will prioritise gaining financial independence over everything, over getting a new car, over getting a fancy watch. Over getting other material possessions that will make it 'appear' that they are wealthy when in fact they would not be.

In order for you to be able to build your financial future, you need to postpone your luxury lifestyle until your finances can support it. Otherwise, you are making yourself poor by trying to look rich.

This doesn't cost any money, it will in fact save you money right away.

If you can do this one simple thing then you will be able to build your financial future to far beyond that of your peers and will be able to prove to yourself and your peers later that you are in fact wealthy.

If you would like to learn why this is so important and more you can do to be financially free check out my YouTube video below.
