

From The Basement #193

November 2022

It had to happen eventually but it doesn't make dealing with it any less daunting. Last week, for the first time post recovery, I officially became "overwhelmed." The prospect of doing a new show found confusion, anger, uncertainty and angst blocking the music that usually keeps those emotions at bay. It happens. And surely will occur again. Like everything we deal with in life there is bound to be bitter encountered among the sweet. Simply giving in to a "fuck this shit" mantra can sometimes be the only way to deal and even provide a quicker path to putting that stuff in the rearview. That is what caused this (slight) delay in the delivery of episode #193 of FTB. Quoting the genius of Was (Not Was), now "I Feel Better Than James Brown" and with a ton of new tunes and a heartfelt musical farewell to The Killer, Jerry Lee Lewis, a true cornerstone embodiment of both Rock and Roll, it's clear skies ahead. Listen for new releases from Ghost Funk Orchestra, Omar Apollo, St. Vincent, Wilco, Margo Price, The Linda Lindas, Jason Isbell & Amanda Shires, Robyn Hitchcock, The Cult, Killing Joke, Acid Dad, My Morning Jacket, The 1975, Hugh Cornwell and Van Morrison. And thanks to all for your love and support at
