

The Real Problem

Dear everyone,

this speech will not be a good speech, well, for most of you it will not be satisfying. I have some things to announce, as well as my future as president of chatter's district and member of the Discord and as myself, as a person. First of all, I wish you a happy new year and good luck for the future.

In the last years I have noticed some "behavioral errors", people are getting older and more childish. In the last months I have noticed the truth of people, there power & past and in the last weeks I have noticed that I have changed forever.

But structure first...

Please take a few minutes to read through the whole thing. It's a very important issue.

1. The problem with the mapping & related communities.

There is a big gap between childish and adult behaviour in our community. People are getting older and at the same time more childish than ever before. They are making fun out of serious matters and conversations. They don't think twice, they simply don't have empathy. Most of these guys can't understand the other people scenario and problem.

This problem does not only exist in the mapping community, but also in related communities, mostly with politics.

In most servers you can see people rage over several arguments from others, if they are globalists, the nationalists scream, or vice versa. People nowadays can't accept the opinion of others. Even if they are not good (in your opinion).

Everyone has an opinion and it should be respected.

Due to recent events in Summer 2019 and beyond, I saw more and more people want to control everything. Big people, even staff-members on the biggest mapping servers out there have controllers. (I will not call any names). They are dictators and they use mapping as a game to get the power. They abuse their members to get their reputation. This is something I can completely not understand. A community does not exist to be ruled by one person, its ruled by the members. These commanders control the crowds with false news and rumors that most people believe. That's how people work, they don't think twice and believe everything as soon as it suits them.

This, of course, plays into the hands of the commanders. In my last months or years, I've never seen as much power influence games. People even talk bad and spread fake news about their "superior officers". They'll do anything to get power.

This does not only happen on the small servers, but also on the biggest servers where you are probably even a member. Most of it, the normal member does not even notice the game.

Everything happens in the staff-section, privately.

These people spread lies just to keep and get control.

Unfortunately, this is not only the case in mapping, but also in the real world, and these actions in our communities show that we are no better than the bought politicians and naive citizens you are complain about.

Take hold of your own nose and question every single authority.

Where do the members get the messages that they sell as fake?

Why should I believe this person? Why should I believe the other person?

Where does the hate towards a group/person come from and the most important question, why at all?

All such questions should be asked yourself before you act.

Don't run after and follow, because these are exactly the people who just watch and do nothing when someone is being bullied. Most will simply read this text and agree, but some will not. Most who read this are probably the people I just described.

Many people do not realize what kind of person they are and do not think to their own intuition. Many consequences only the opinion they like. Many people do not think for themselves, and that is exactly what happens in North Korea or in earlier history. You follow a person, but you don't think about the consequences and whether you are doing well yourself.

For this purpose one can only take the book "451 Fahrenheit" for comparison.

This book describes 1:1 what can happen if it goes on like this until now. One loses one's own thinking and becomes subject to a power, and that is exactly what we are experiencing. Not only in real life, but also in these communities.

2. Myself.

On my trip to East Germany I felt alive again after a very long time. I have phases of depression and I am also not a good, mentally stable person. During my exam phase I had about 4-6 panic attacks, some smaller and up to 2 very large ones.

During my trip to East Germany I had one big panic attack like never before.

I have consecrated my soul.

The whole thing went on for over an hour, and thanks to the support of my girlfriend I survived the panic well, otherwise an emergency doctor would have had to be called at 4 am and if it had got worse, a brain haemorrhage would not have been far away, as the respiratory tract was blocked and no more air could get into the body, but biology should not be the topic today. I had self-doubt for a very long time until I found my real friends, who are infinitely important to me. They are friends I met at school, with whom you have so much fun, I can only recommend you to move away from your computer/phone and enjoy the pleasure of life.

You are only young once so do something instead of sitting in front of the computer all the time. I will be 18 years old in half a year, and I regret being at the computer far too much. I go to the gym with friends, or meet up with them, or even take a holiday together. I have already turned my life 180° more than twice in the last 2 1/2 years. I finally feel like myself. I am really happy for the first time. The next few years for you will be the decisive years, so don't fool around and enjoy it.

I have finally found myself, and my girlfriend knows more about me than I know myself.

I found myself so much through her that my self-confidence has increased by 100%, without her I would not be standing here today. So a big thank you to you.

What I'm saying is, you need to find someone you can talk to about anything.

Reduce your online time and invest in a good friendship with whom you can do all kinds of shit, find yourself and strengthen each other.

What now?

I have to reduce my time on Discord, I have already announced and executed my resignation around summer 2018. In the end I was only an active MSP founder, as well as a TMJ founder and had my own server.

TMJ will close with this text, but MSP will continue to live and continue to serve to protect the community, because exactly such persons as mentioned above, the commanders, we protect you against them. It is the community that rules, not a person or a group.

I closed my community server and started a new one called "Chatter's District".

This is one of the most active community servers (in relation to the size of the members) that is different from mapping content.

This server has become a real family, but also has a lot of childish members (explained more clearly at point 3).

I will reduce my time, but will continue to run for president. The group (Hannah, Zoe and I) will become more inactive, as we will simply see each other more often than usual. I hope you understand that, and if not, it is not your decision and there is nothing you can do about it.

3. The Behaviour

I was and still am partly of the firm conviction that youth is not getting worse. Only our definition does, but the characteristics are changing. In the past, people used to value discipline and punctuality, today they value flexibility and composure. More and more teenagers are losing their sense of respect. More and more teenagers are becoming more disrespectful (but doesn't make youth worse than ours, our parents complain about our youth, our grandparents complain about our parents' youth, and we as parents will complain about our children's youth, it's an eternal struggle)

The thing that is missing is the mind of empathy and respect. Many people just grumble and think everything is self-evident. The prosperity you have, the family you have, the life you have, the peace you have is taken for granted by most people today, but it is not and people forget the value of these things, that is a big mistake and will bring us all down.

Many users behave like toddlers and think they are funny by posting pictures in a channel. By this I do not mean memes or anything else. But just random pictures, gifs, videos and so on.

Many users think they can achieve something by shouting "Death to mapping" or raiding servers.

Setting up a discord server is the easiest thing in the world, and raid-protection it is even easier. But many users don't get it, they give raiders the leeway and don't think twice.

Raiders live on hate, and again and again you give them hate, you support the raiders instead of forgetting them, congratulations, you support your own enemy. Many raiders stopped because they did not get attention, many continued because they got attention. These people have serious pathological problems, so just leave them alone. This can only be "fixed" by trained people.

Back to the real issue. Dealing with each other. As explained above is simply underground. It is frightening how many people just insult someone or even cyberbullying people, and don't even realize it themselves.

The behaviour will continue if you do not actively work against it. Fact. Man is a creature of habit.

The selfishness of some people will bring everything down. Many (not all) think only of themselves and not of others. Sure, it's good to take care of yourself first and then of others because you should be fine, but think about where you are in the first place. I see many players opening new servers over and over again. That's exactly what I meant above, many don't even think about it anymore. Many don't think logically. If you open more and more servers you automatically reduce the activity on other servers. It's like in nature, like in a food chain, in this case an unnecessary food chain, people are striving for strength, power and influence. Fact, that's how humans think.

Instead of splitting up on several larger servers and taking part in the elections, the lazy human prefers to open up his own server to have direct power. Bullshit like that, honestly. Now this is just an example, but I hope the message has arrived.

4. Closing words

Now this was a very long text, which really shows the basic problems, you might not have felt addressed, but you should. Every single one of us has at least one aspect in these texts that applies to you.

If we do not change, then we will go down.

But some of you will not be able to understand the texts at all and just ignore it or not read it at all, congratulations, exactly these people are even more fucked up than everyone else.

We have to work on ourselves or we will all perish, or we keep the negative course of inactivity as it is now.

I hope you have understood my texts, I am open for questions and discussions.

With kind regards,

Tobi aka. Ares
