Chopsticks

What if you had no knives? What if you had no forks or spoons? And what if you couldn't pick up your food with your hands? Then how would you eat?

You might try chopsticks.

Most people in China don't use knives or forks. They use chopsticks. These sticks come in pairs. They are a little longer than a pencil. They're thinner, too. And they are made of wood or bone.

How do you use chopsticks? You hold them with the thumb and fingers of one hand. Then you trap a piece of food between the ends of the sticks. And you bring the food to your mouth.

So now you know how to use chopsticks. The first time you try them, you might have trouble. Many people do. But not the people in China, Japan and Viet Nam. They grew up using chopsticks. They can work them easily and quickly.
