

RHIMS 10 Review: Get Paid $25, $50, Even $100+ for Phone Calls? Here's What I Think After Completing the Course

An inside look at JayKay Dowdall's Pay-Per-Call training, the free traffic strategy, and the eight bonuses included.

I've been through RHIMS 10: Get Paid Per Call, and there's one thing that really stands out to me about this training.

You don't need to sell anything to earn a big affiliate commission.

And I don't mean you have to find some clever way of disguising a sales pitch.

I mean you can actually earn commissions by getting people to make phone calls to businesses that are already looking for customers.

We're talking about buyers willing to pay $25, $50, and in some cases over $100 for qualified calls.

No closing sales. No handling customers. No answering the phone yourself.

It's called Pay-Per-Call affiliate marketing, and it's the entire focus of JayKay Dowdall's tenth installment in his RHIMS training series.

I've been a customer of JayKay's RHIMS series before and I've always found the lessons he teaches to be so much more valuable than the price of admission.

But what makes RHIMS 10 particularly interesting is the way JayKay teaches you to generate those calls using free traffic and simple AI-built funnels.

Let me explain what I found inside.

RHIMS 10

GET PAID PER CALL

What Exactly Is RHIMS 10?

RHIMS stands for Really Helpful Internet Marketing Stuff, and RHIMS 10 is JayKay Dowdall's training program dedicated to Pay-Per-Call affiliate marketing.

If you've done any traditional affiliate marketing, you probably know the routine that everyone tells you:

Find a product. Get an affiliate link. Send people to the sales page. Hope they buy something.

And if they don't buy, you don't get paid.

Pay-Per-Call works differently.

Instead of earning a commission when someone purchases a product, you're earning a commission when you generate a phone call that meets a buyer's requirements.

Here's a simple example.

Someone has a plumbing emergency and needs a plumber.

They go online looking for help, find a page you've created, and call the affiliate number.

That call is routed to a plumbing buyer looking for new customers.

If it meets the buyer's requirements, you earn a commission.

The buyer answers the phone, speaks with the customer, and handles the actual sale.

You never have to speak with the caller.

And this isn't limited to plumbing.

There are Pay-Per-Call opportunities in all kinds of home services, insurance, automotive, legal services, healthcare, and plenty of other evergreen markets.

These are services people need every day, regardless of what's happening in the latest online marketing trend.

This is something JayKay stresses throughout this course, this is really evergreen marketing, and he shows an amazing way to turn this into an asset that you can flip for massive revenue.

That's what makes this business model so interesting.

What Are You Actually Doing?

The training takes you through the process of setting up your own Pay-Per-Call campaigns which he calls "Call Funnels".

The process revolves around three main things.

1. Find buyers willing to pay for calls

First, you need a Pay-Per-Call offer.

JayKay shows you how to find opportunities by working with affiliate networks that handle the buyer relationships and payments, and identify offers worth promoting.

You learn why certain niches are attractive, what makes a call valuable, and why buyers are willing to pay substantial commissions for the right potential customers.

2. Publish simple Call Funnels using AI

This is where the strategy starts coming together.

JayKay calls the assets you create Call Funnels.

They're focused pages designed to connect people looking for a particular service with the buyer paying for qualified calls.

JayKay provides AI prompts that can be used with tools such as ChatGPT, Claude, or DeepSeek to help create these funnels.

You're not required to purchase some expensive funnel-building software or paid hosting.

You can use AI tools you probably already have access to, and there are free tools that JayKay uses to get these assets online.

3. Get FREE traffic to your funnels

This is probably one of the biggest attractions of RHIMS 10.

Instead of teaching you to immediately spend money on Google Ads, Facebook Ads, or other paid ads, JayKay shows you how to attract callers using free traffic methods.

And importantly, you're trying to reach people who are already interested in the services you're promoting.

You're not trying to manufacture demand for something nobody wants.

You're connecting existing demand with buyers willing to pay for it.

You don't need to post on social media, or pretend to be an expert in the niche.

There's no grinding for clicks or visitors.

It really is as simple as publishing the Call Funnel asset, and then letting the organic traffic come to the page.

Of course, you can choose to take extra steps to get more visitors to your Call Funnel, but the basic strategy is as simple as it is clever: Publish this call funnel on an asset that already gets targeted traffic in your niche, and then wait to get paid for calls.

It's takes about 15 minutes per month to maintain the traffic.

This traffic strategy is not going to work for other parts of your business, it's very clever but it's only going to work for generating calls – that's what makes it so interesting to me.

Your RHIMS 10 Bonus Package

These bonuses are designed to help you overcome the practical problems that come up when you're trying to get a new campaign working.

Here's what you get.

Bonus #1: The Pay-Per-Call Niche Hit List

Not sure which niche to choose?

This gives you a researched list of 30 Pay-Per-Call niches, ranked according to beginner-friendliness, payout potential, competition, evergreen demand, geography, and free-traffic opportunities.

Instead of spending your first week trying to figure out where to start, you can use the list to identify promising opportunities.

Bonus #2: 10 Call Funnels You Can Copy This Weekend

This might be one of the most useful bonuses for someone who wants to take action quickly.

You get ten complete Call Funnel blueprints covering the niche, opportunity, traffic angle, type of offer, and funnel structure.

Choose a blueprint, study how it works, and use AI to help build your own version.

It's much easier to get started when you've got something concrete to model.

Bonus #3: The FREE Traffic Treasure Map

The core training introduces JayKay's free traffic strategy.

This bonus goes further.

You get additional traffic sources and methods to investigate, including guidance on which approaches are suitable for different niches and which require more hands-on work.

It's particularly useful when you're ready to explore additional ways of generating calls.

Bonus #4: The Call Funnel AI Prompt Vault

This is a collection of copy-and-paste prompts for researching niches, evaluating opportunities, building funnels, writing copy, checking compliance, troubleshooting, and scaling.

If you've ever stared at an empty AI chat window wondering what to type, you'll appreciate having prompts already prepared for the tasks involved.

Bonus #5: The Pay-Per-Call Case Files

I always appreciate seeing how a strategy works beyond the theory.

Here, you'll see how a break down of real Pay-Per-Call campaigns, including a case study from his original Pay-Per-Call course back in 2017.

You'll see what he did, what happened, what worked, and what he would change today.

That's useful context from someone who has been involved with this business model for years.

Bonus #6: The "Where Are The Callers?" Troubleshooter

What happens when you've built your funnel and nothing seems to be happening?

This bonus helps you diagnose the problem.

No traffic? Visitors but no calls? Calls but no payouts?

Instead of randomly changing things, you've got a process to help identify where the problem might be.

Bonus #7: The 15-Minute Monthly Maintenance Plan

Once your Call Funnels are running, you don't necessarily want to spend every day checking and tinkering with them.

This bonus gives you a monthly check-up process for reviewing traffic, calls, payouts, and campaign performance.

The idea is to decide whether a funnel needs fixing, scaling, replacing, or simply leaving alone.

Bonus #8: The $10 Pay-Per-Call Stack

Here's another bonus that makes the training beginner-friendly.

It shows you the essential free and low-cost resources needed to get started, with the goal of keeping your initial setup cost to approximately $10 for a domain name.

It also separates essential tools from optional ones.

So you don't end up buying a pile of subscriptions before you've generated your first call.

What I Like Most About RHIMS 10

For me, there are three really nice aspects of this training.

First, the business model makes sense.

Businesses need customers. People need services. And Pay-Per-Call creates a way for marketers to connect the two and get paid – just like traditional affiliate marketing.

You're not dependent on convincing someone to buy another online course or software product.

You're helping generate genuine inquiries for buyers that want them.

Second, the training is designed around actually doing the work.

It's not simply an explanation of what Pay-Per-Call is.

You're shown how to find offers, build Call Funnels, attract traffic, and start generating qualified calls.

Third, the startup costs can be kept low.

You don't need to purchase an expensive software suite or pay for ads just to try the strategy.

That's a meaningful advantage for someone who wants to experiment with a new affiliate marketing model without taking on substantial upfront costs.

Is There Anything You Should Know Before Buying?

Yes.

Pay-Per-Call isn't a guaranteed income opportunity.

You're still going to need to research your niche, build your funnel, get it in front of potential callers, and see what works.

Not every phone call qualifies for a commission.

Buyers can have requirements involving call duration, geography, caller intent, and other conditions to stop people spamming them with junk calls and demanding to be paid.

But I don't see those things as reasons to dismiss RHIMS 10.

They're simply the realities of making any kind of money online.

The important thing is having a clear process to follow rather than trying to piece everything together yourself and that's all covered from end-to-end inside RHIMS 10.

Who Should Consider RHIMS 10?

I'd recommend looking at RHIMS 10 if you're an affiliate marketer who wants to diversify beyond traditional product promotions.

It's also worth considering if you're new to affiliate marketing and would prefer a model where you don't have to build an email list, create videos, or personally sell products to customers.

And if you're interested in using AI to build simple marketing assets without spending heavily on advertising, this training is extra relevant.

On the other hand, if you're looking for completely hands-off income without building anything or putting in effort, this probably isn't the right fit.

My Final Verdict: Is RHIMS 10 Worth It?

Yes. If you're interested in affiliate marketing, I think RHIMS 10 is well worth considering especially if you've never heard of Pay-Per-Call before – this is a great way to get started and get paid.

What makes this package attractive isn't simply the possibility of earning $25, $50, or even $100+ for a phone call to a buyer.

It's that JayKay has put together a practical strategy for finding opportunities, building Call Funnels, and attracting potential callers without depending on paid ads.

And with the eight bonuses, you've also got resources to help you choose your niche, model existing funnel ideas, use AI, find additional traffic, troubleshoot problems, and keep your campaigns running.

That makes RHIMS 10 a compelling starting point for someone who wants to explore this side of affiliate marketing.

If you'd like to see how the strategy works, I've included my link below.
