CONTENT: EMPIRES AND KINGDOMS IN PRE-COLONIAL WESTERN SUDAN AND WEST AFRICA

An emperor is like a king: a person with absolute power over a country. An empress is therefore like a queen. Also, just as a queen is the wife of a king, an empress might be the wife of an emperor, meaning she's not the ruler of the country but just married to the ruler.

The male ruler of an empire is often called an emperor, while the female ruler of an empire is often called an empress. However, sometimes other titles are used. King and queen, of course, are some of the most common, but there are others.

What is the concept of empire emperor and Empress?

EDURESOURCE

The male ruler of an empire is often called an emperor, while the female ruler of an empire is often called an empress.

FEATURES OF AN EMPIRE

A few characteristics that define an empire include:

- 1. expansive territory
- 2. Areas under control
- 3. Military power
- 4. Ruling class
- 5. Wealth, and
- 6. Commerce.

REASONS FOR THE RISE AND FALL OF EMPIRES AND KINGDOMS IN WESTERN SUDAN AND WEST AFRICA

- 1. Although a rich diversity of goods were exchanged, all the empires of the western Sudan were primarily based upon control of the lucrative trans-Saharan trade in gold and salt.
- 2. The economic balance between agricultural Ghana and the pastoral Ṣanhājah, and ultimately it provoked a reaction. Like the North African Imazighen, the Ṣanhājah were already to some extent Islamized, and they shortly found in a militant, puritanical version of Islam the means to eliminate their differences and to unite in the movement known to history as the Almoravids. In the middle of the 11th century they began to expand into the productive lands on either side of the western Sahara, and it would seem that later in the century Ghana became dominated by them.

- 3. One important result of this domination, following as it did upon some centuries of trading contact by Muslims, was that the ruling and merchant classes of the western Sudan became converted to Islam—though in the case of the rulers the conversion was for many centuries not wholehearted. The justification for a king's claim to enforce his rule over his subjects, who remained pagan, was his descent from the original ancestor who had first settled the land and, by accommodation with its deities and spirits, had developed and controlled it for agriculture. If he were not to be rejected and replaced as king by a rival member of its royal family, he had to continue to observe the ancestral and land cult rites in which he was the principal figure.
- 4. The depredations of the Almoravids' herds and their internecine quarrels must have undermined the prosperity of agriculture in a marginal environment and would have accelerated the decay of Ghana. More southerly Mande groups, many of which had formed satellite kingdoms of the Ghana empire, began to act independently and to compete among themselves for primacy. Eventually about 1235, in the time of a king called Sundiata, the Keita kings of Mali, in the well-watered and gold-bearing lands of the uppermost Niger valley, gained ascendancy and incorporated what was left of ancient Ghana into their own considerably more extensive empire.

The Factors Responsible for the Rise of the Western Sudanese States

Western Sudan refers to the savannah belt of West Africa stretching from the Atlantic Coast in the west to lake Chad in the east. States, which rose in this area, include Ghana, Mali, Songhai, Kanem-Bornu and the Hausa state of Sokoto.

1. Linguistics

- Existence of core linguistic and ethnic groups in the areas of the state.

This played a major role in uniting the people behind a strong, centralized political leadership Here come some examples.

- –Soninke Ghana.
- Mandingo Mali
- Songhai Songhai
- Kanuri Kanem-Bornu

This brought about peace, unity and stability.

EDURESOURCE

2. Political - one ...

There were bureaucratic and highly respected monarchies.

The people obeyed their kings without question since they were regarded as divine. This ensured stability and progress.

2. Political – two ...

Able and strong leadership

The kings ruled effectively and this led to the rise and growth of the Western Sudanese states.

- They established strong armies to expand and safeguard their kingdoms.

Examples of leaders of these hugely successful Western Sudanese states were:

Askia the Great (Songhai)

Mansa Musa and Sundiata (Mali)

Idris Alaoma (Kanem- Bornu)

3. Economic

Trade

- Most of the Western Sudanese were middlemen in the Trans-Saharan Trade.
- This brought wealth and growth of cities and towns. E.g. Timbuktu, Jenne, Kumbi Saleh, Gao.

4. Geography

Favourable location

- The rise of the Western Sudanese also became possible since they were in the midst of abundant natural resources.
- They became self-sufficient in food production and supply.

- They had mineral wealth as well.

Gold – Wangara Salt – Taghaza Copper – Tekedda

EVALUATION / ASSIGNMENT

- 1. Describe the Empire , Emperor, Empress, features of an Empire
- 2. Give reasons for the rise of empires and kingdoms in western Sudan and West Africa
- 3. Explain factors that led to the collapse, fall, decline of empires and kingdoms in Sudan and West Africa

SUMMARY

Rise and Fall of the Sudanic Kingdoms

The fall of the Sudanic Kingdoms consisted of politics and misguided power. Both the Sanhadja Confederation, and the Almoravid Empire were weakened by internecine warfare (relating to slaughter or carnage; bloody), and both succumbed (died) to further invasions from the Ghana Empire and the Almohad Empire.

The rise in the Sudanic Kingdoms was because of many reasons including: solidarity (unity or agreement of feeling or action, esp. among individuals with a common interest; mutual support within a group), statehood organization, and trading. The slave trade was an important part of the rise.

Sudanic Kingdoms such as Ghana, Mali, Songhai, and Karem- Borno owed their power and wealth to controlling the southern part of the trans-Saharan trade.

First, the Almoravids attacked and subdued (conquer) the Djodala, forcing them to acknowledge Islam. Then the Almoravids succeeded in recreating the political unity of the Sanhadja Confederation and adding to it a religious unity and purpose.

Ghana, the first of West African Sudanic kingdoms, included in its territory all of southeastern Mauritania extending to Tagant. Ghana reached its apogee in the ninth and tenth centuries with the extension of its rule over the Sanhadja Berbers. The Sudanic Kingdom controlled the southern terminus of the trans-Saharan trade in gold, ivory, and salt.

CONTENT: OLD-GHANA EMPIRE IN WESTERN SUDAN AND WEST AFRICA

What was the history of the old Ghana Empire?

Ancient Ghana ruled from around 300 to 1100 CE. The empire first formed when a number of tribes of the Soninke peoples were united under their first king, Dinga Cisse. The government of the empire was a feudal government with local kings who paid tribute to the high king, but ruled their lands as they saw fit.

What led to the rise of the old Ghana Empire?

The Ghana Empire grew rich from the trans-Sahara trade, helped by its control over the three major gold fields to the south. Traders called Ghana "the Land of Gold," and the kings of Ghana were sometimes called "the Lords of the Gold." This gold helped the Ghana Empire to flourish.

Ghana empire was one of the earliest known negro empires recorded by historians, it was first mention by an Arab geographer, Al-fazari, in Ad773 in his book Al-masudi, where he referred to it as a land of gold. According to Al-bakri an Arab traveler in his writing in AD 1067, reveals that the name; Ghana was the title of the Soninke king called Auokar which means ; war chief,

It was not certain how and when Ghana was founded, but from Arab sources, particularly the Tariskh al Sudan, it appears to have been founded by a Soninke dynasty between AD 300-400.

Early history of Ghana empire also revealed that it was situated on the grasslands North of the rivers Senegal and Niger, its capital Kumbi Saleh is said to have ben founded by Kaya Maghan, who is credited to have over thrown the immigrant minority and Negro indigenes in about AD700 and established purely Soninke dynasty.

by AD1000,the sonnike kingdom had extended it territory, in the west to the river Senegal and south to Bambuk town of Audoghast of the sahara desert, by the middle of the 11th control over area covering most of the modern states of Senegal,Mali and Territories of roughly 650,000 square kilometers.

FACTORS FOR THESE RISE OF GHANA EMPIRE

- 1. Geographical location
- 2. location around trade route
- 3. expansion factors
- 4. large army
- 5. good government

SOCIO POLITICAL STRUCTURE OF GHANA EMPIRE

In expressing the socio political structure of Ghana empire, is a description of how it was organized and governed, These involved primarily describing the government at the centre, the provinces, the vassal states and the army

1. The king

- 2. council of Advisers and ministers
- 3. provincial Governors
- 4. District chiefs
- 5. Trade
- 6. The Army

FACTORS THAT LED TO THE FALL OF GHANA EMPIRE

The decline and fall of Ghana Empire were internal and external

- 1. INTERNAL FACTORS
- 2. The size of the Empire
- 3. Political instability
- 4. The social and culture heterogeneity of the empire;
- EXTERNAL FACTORS;
- Increasing pressures and Attacks
- Revolts
- Invasion of Kumbi saleh

- 3. What role did trade play in rise of Ghana empire

Factors That Led To The Rise Of Ghana Empire.

4. explain the factors for the decline and fall of Ghana empire

ASSIGNMENT

EDURESOURCE Explain Mali EMPIRE

The ancient Ghana Empire was the first of the Sudanic empires and a lot of factors contributed to the rise of the Soninke people and they are:

- (1). Geography and location: The geography of ancient Ghana played an important role in the origin, growth and development of the empire. The geography of western African area comprises three vegetation zones, which are: the Sahara (a desert in North Africa); the savannah, also known as grassland, and it has varieties of animals and trees; while the rainforest has large forest and plants. These three vegetation zones contributed to the success of the empire.
- (2). Faming and agriculture: The Soninke people were initially farmers who united to trade and make crop exchange because of their surplus harvest. The land they occupied was very fertile and good for agriculture. The success of their crop farming led to abundant harvests, therefore the Soninke people delved into crop trade and thus expanded their community of different clans into a full empire.
- (3). Mineral resources: The growth and development of the ancient Ghana empire was rapid because of the abundance of some natural resources such as gold and iron, found in strategic locations in the empire. The rulers took advantage of their resources and used the revenue generated from gold and iron to develop the empire.

- (4). Trade: The Soninke people established a farm market that allowed other communities to visit the land for trade. As neighbouring communities came to make purchases, the region expanded and more people migrated to settle in the land.
- (5). Availability of a strong army: The Soninke people had the advantage of a strong cavalry army. The rulers were able to purchase horses from travelling Nomads who visited their land. More so, the Soninke army had access to iron and most of their weapons were iron-made such as spears, bow and arrow, etc. compared to their enemies' warriors who had weapons made from wood and bones.
- (6). People of the empire: The economic prosperity of the ancient Ghana empire brought about the influx of traders, geographers and Islamic missionaries. Different people from all over the world who visited and resided in the empire brought in experiences and ideas from other lands

CONTENT: MALI EMPIRE IN WESTERN SUDAN AND WEST AFRICA

EARLY HISTORY OF MALI EMPIRE

The empire which came to be known as Mali originated from the little Malinke Kingdom called Kangaba, Mali envolved from the unification of a number of small villages known as Dugu and ruled by local chieftains called Dugutigi.it is likely that the fusion of the villages were motivated by the desire of the people to present a united front against enemies and also to participate more in the trans-saharan trade. The early king of kangaba were not known to historians, however, according to one sheikh uthman, a muslim scholar and writer, the first king of kangaba to be converted to islam in the middle of the 11th centure was Baramendana 9i.e, AD 1050] unlike Ghana, Mali became a muslim state from very early stage of its existence as an empire.

FACTORS FOR THE RISE OF MALI EMPIRE

- 1. political factors for the rise of Mali empire
- 2. Geographical location
- 3. Good political environment
- 4. Strong successors to sundiata;; In addition to the political role played by sundiata to the rise of mali empire were the caliber of kings that reigned after him, for examples ,kings such as Mansa Uli [1255-1270],Mansa Musa [1312-1337],who continued the expansionist policy started by sundiata and also made the empire to be known to the outside world.

- 2. political factors
- 3. military prowess
- 4. religious factors
- Economic factor

FACTORS FOR THE FALL OF SONGHAI EMPIRE

- 1. The communication system was poor and inadequate, also there were no natural frontiers to protect the empire
- 2. Ethnic diversity, religious differences and levels of civilization combined to make it difficult for the empire to sustain its unity.
- 3. The situation in Songhai became worst after the death of Askia Mohammed I in 1528 when the empire lost its stability owing to the rebellion put forward by the eldest son Askia.
- 4. lack of good leadership, ineffective central government and the revolts by vassal states led to the weakness of Songhai army

THE CONTRIBUTION OF ASKIA MOHAMMED 1 TO THE GREATNESS OF SONGHAI

Askia Muhammad strengthened his empire and made it the largest empire in West Africa's history. At its peak under his reign, the Songhai Empire encompassed the Hausa states as far as Kano (in present-day Northern Nigeria) and much of the territory that had belonged to the Songhai empire in the east.

Songhai's power and prosperity grew further from its participation in the trans-Saharan trade. Gold, salt, ivory, hides, copper, and other goods were exchanged between Berber traders from North Africa and producers from the West African forests.

Askia Muhammad also introduced policies that increased trade with Europe and Asia, standardized weights, measures, and currency; replaced native Songhay administrators with Arab Muslims in an attempt to Islamicize society, and encouraged learning and literacy.

THE CONTRIBUTION OF KING SUNNY ALI OF SONGHAI

Around 1468, King Sunni Ali (aka Sonni Ali Ber) changed the traditional Songhai tactic of small and sporadic raids on its enemies to a more sustained campaign of permanent territorial expansion.

Songhai Empire in 1500. Songhai rulers took advantage of the weakened Mali Empire to expanded Songhai rule. Under the rule of Sonni Ali, the Songhai surpassed the Malian Empire in area, wealth, and power, absorbing vast areas of the Mali Empire and reaching its greatest extent.

His conquest of the leading Sudanese trading cities established the basis for Songhai's future prosperity and expansion. When Sonni 'Alī ascended the Songhai throne about 1464, the kingdom comprised only a small area in the upper Niger valley around its capital, the prosperous trading city of Gao.

CONTENT: FACTORS FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF GREAT EMPIRES IN WESTERN SUDAN AND WEST AFRICA

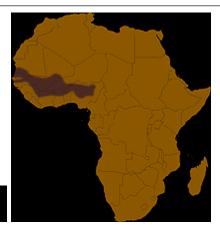

Three celebrated empires flourished in the Western Sudan between the 8th and 17th centuries: Ghana (c. 8th-11th century), Mali (c. 13th-16th century), and Songhai (c. 15th-17th century).

The pre-colonial period in West Africa was dominated by three empires: Ghana, Mali, and Songhai. Discover how the trans-Saharan gold trade helped these empires rise to power.

The medieval empires of Ghana, Mali, and Songhai that controlled the western Sudan had no fixed geopolitical boundaries or singular ethnic or national identities.

The Ghana empire. While there were many city-states and small kingdoms in West Africa for centuries, the Ghana Empire was the first major agrarian empire to arise in the region.

The Songhai Empire (also transliterated as Songhay) was a state located in the western part of the Sahel during the 15th and 16th centuries. At its peak, it was one of the largest African empires in history.

Western Sudan

Geography

The geographic region known as the Sudan extends across much of the continent south of the Sahara. The Western Sudan covers a vast territory from Senegal through Chad that ranges from areas of desert to grassland to wooded savanna.

History

Three celebrated empires flourished in the Western Sudan between the 8th and 17th centuries: Ghana (c. 8th-11th century), Mali (c. 13th-16th century), and Songhai (c. 15th-17th century). Their great power came from the trans-Saharan trade and the export of gold, ivory, kola nuts, and slaves. Trade was also the principal means for the introduction and spread of Islam.

The inland delta region of the Niger River in Mali is an area of great importance in African art history. Terra cotta figures of humans and animals, as well as cast copper alloy objects, have been found throughout this region. These archaeological objects have been dated from the 8th to the 17th century and are important for the reconstruction of history and art history in West Africa.

Artists

In the Western Sudan, artists often belong to hereditary castes and marry within their own groups. Among the Bamana of Mali, for example, male blacksmiths and woodcarvers constitute a professional caste. They are commissioned by political and initiation associations to create ritual objects.

EDURESOURCE

Art and style

Masks, which often combine human and animal traits, or traits from different animals, are used in agricultural, funerary, or entertainment performances. Figures may combine commemorative, ancestral, and protective functions.

Sculpture from the Western Sudan tends to be angular and elongated, and anatomical details are often minimally suggested. Surfaces are matte or encrusted from repeated libations. Brilliant pigments are frequently applied, particularly to masks and headdresses, but they fade with time.

THE FACTORS THAT LED TO THE DECLINE OF GREAT EMPIRES

Several factors, such as

- 1. Weak leadership
- 2. Foreign invasions, and
- 3. Rebellions within the tributary states,

Led to the decline of Mali after Mansa Musa's death. The empire got increasingly smaller through the early fifteenth century.

With the gradual abolition of slavery in the European colonial empires during the 19th century, slave trade again became less lucrative and the West African empires entered a period of decline, and mostly collapsed by the end of the 19th century.

The Factor's Responsible for the Rise of the Western Sudanese...

- Linguistics. Existence of core linguistic and ethnic groups in the areas of the state. ...
- Political one ... There were bureaucratic and highly respected monarchies. ...
- Political two ... Able and strong leadership. ...
- Economic. Trade. ...
- Geography.

Some of the broad factors that historians use to help explain imperial collapse are:

- Economic issues.
- Social and cultural issues.
- Environmental issues.
- Political issues.

The fall of the Sudanic Kingdoms consisted of politics and misguided power. Both the Sanhadja Confederation, and the Almoravid Empire were weakened by internecine warfare (relating to slaughter or carnage; bloody), and both succumbed (died) to further invasions from the Ghana Empire and the Almohad Empire.

WHAT WAS THE IMPACT OF WEST AFRICAN EMPIRES ON MODERN AFRICAN ECONOMIES? This led to further economic growth in the region. The success of the West African empires in promoting trade brought new people into the region and its economy. Increasing numbers of Muslims traveled to Mali and Songhai along the trans-Saharan network.

Ghana's rulers gained incredible wealth from trade, taxes on traders and on the people of Ghana, and their own personal stores of gold. They used their wealth to build an army and an empire. Extensive trade routes brought the people of Ghana into contact with people of many different cultures and beliefs.

How did West African empires impact European trade? African people and African goods played an important role in arousing European interest in world resources. The Portuguese carried goods from Europe to West African empires, trading metals, cloth, and other manufactured goods for gold.

The policies of colonialism forced the demise of African industry and created a reliance on imported goods from Europe. Had native industry been encouraged and cultivated by the colonizing powers, Africa would probably be in a much better economic and technological position today.
