Restoring

-Or- Help! Where are my Triggers???

ACT has a great backup feature, so no need to panic if your triggers are suddenly gone. Go to the Options Tab, then click ON the Configuration Import/Export Line (PINK):

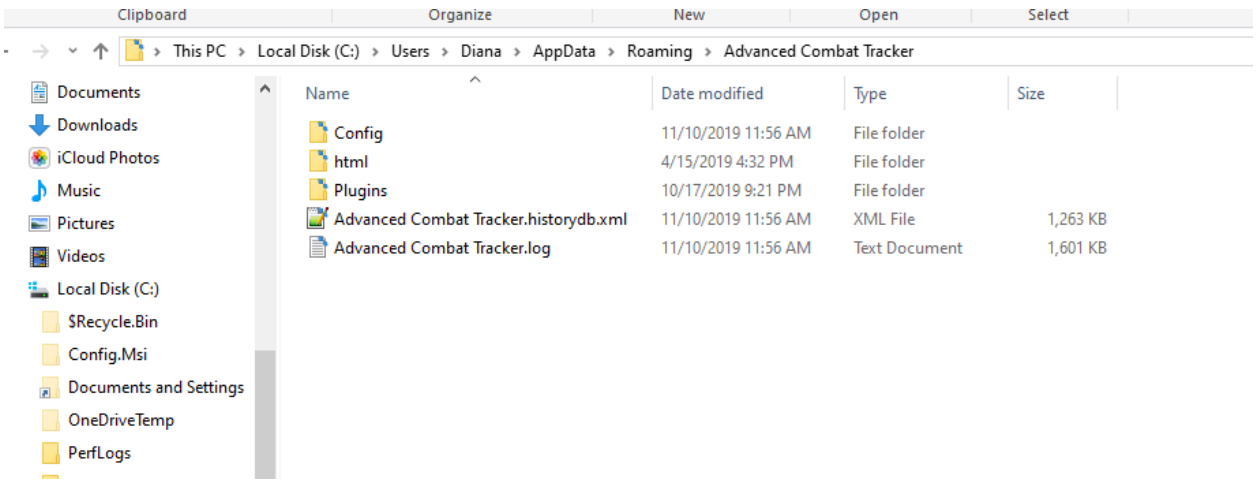

Then you can select the last known working backing (BLUE - likely the latest one) and hit the load backup button (ORANGE).

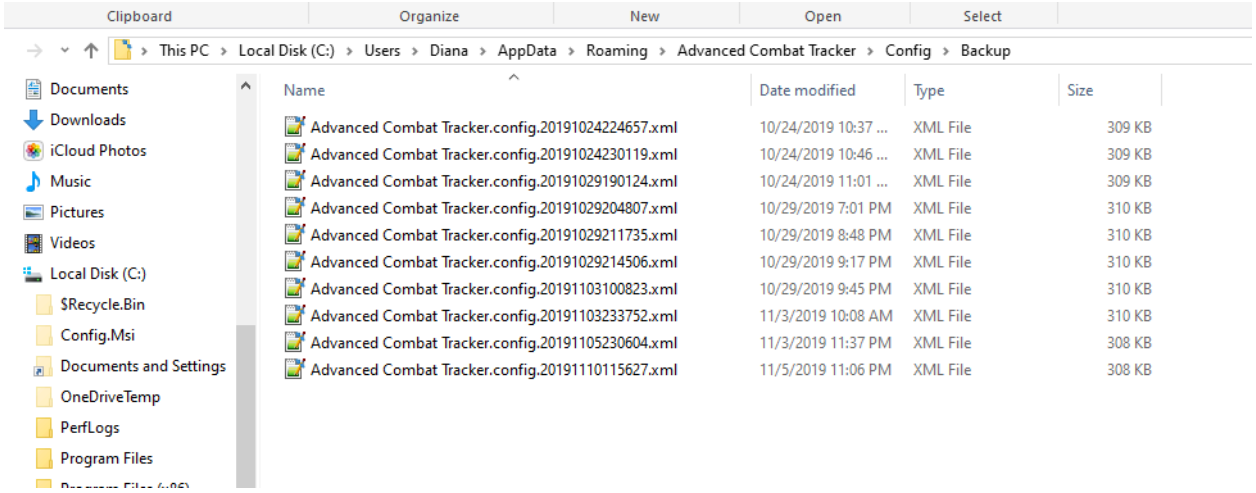

Backing Up:

Those backups above will happen automatically, but if you want even more backup options:

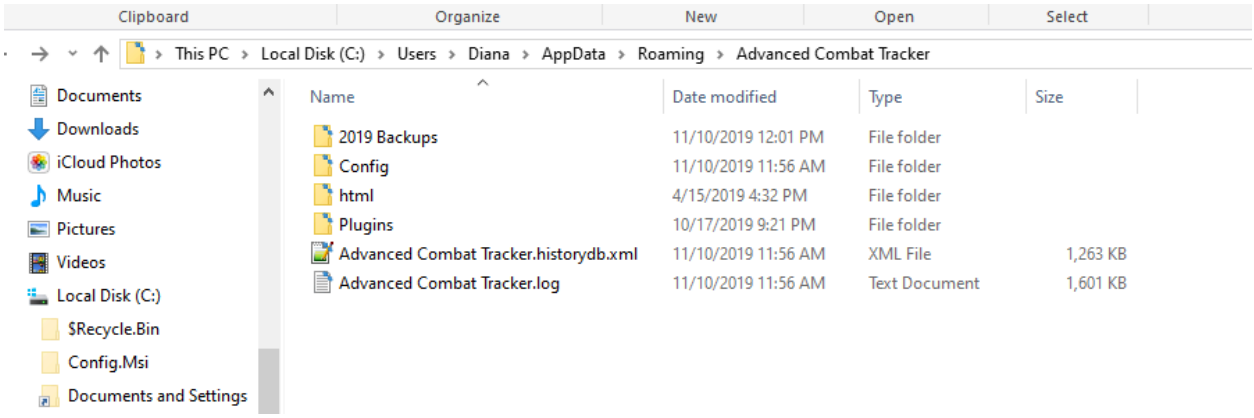

Typical ACT file location:

Backup Files:

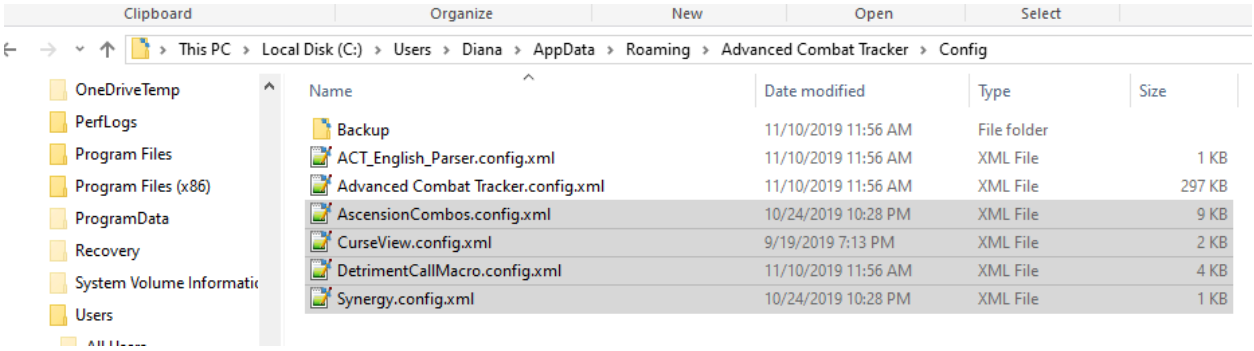

Recommended for more backup options - Copy (Ctrl-C) the backup folder, move to the main ACT folder (or when you will remember) paste & rename. I put mine:

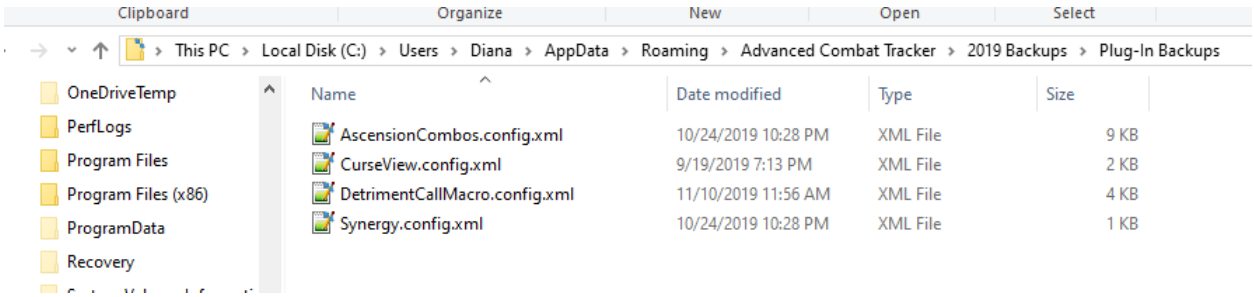

That way you can remove old expansions, etc, with even more confidence.

Plug-In File Backup

You likely want backups of your plug-in configuration files too. These are in the Config folder along with the current main config file. I do not think these are automatically backed up at all, so it may be more important to grab these. Select all, except ACT_English_Parser.config.xml & Advanced Combat Tracker.config.xml, Copy them

Then move to your new Backup folder and make a folder in that called Plug-In Backups, and paste them there.

If anything happens to your plug-in files, you can manually replace an older working version to the original “Config” folder.
