Backstory:

- From a wealthy noble family in Ul'dah, father was a high ranking immortal flame
- Her dad wasn't home much and tended to be injured in some way when he was, so her mum wasn't crazy about his job
- Soleil really really idolised him tho, wanted to be just like him, etc etc. Ever since she was little her big dream was to be a flame like her dad, be a soldier, fight for her land. That was like the picture of honour for her
- She had to wait a long time before officially becoming an adventurer/starting training bc with her dad away like all the time her mother really had her hands full balancing work (her mother is a goldsmith, just for flavour; a fairly high demand one so she had a lot of work to do) and looking after her siblings who are quite a bit younger than Soleil (I think Solonie is around 6 years younger, Solin 10 years or so) so like, Soleil was needed at home
- In the end she lost her father to the battle of Carteneau, when she was 22. At the time she'd just been allowed to start training at the gladiators' guild since her siblings were teens at this point, but she had to withdraw to be with her family while they were grieving
- Despite this she still really idealised the life of a soldier and wanted to follow in her father's footsteps
- Her family was now super against it after how hard the loss of her dad had hit them but Soleil maintained this idea that it was a noble death, he died fighting for his land, what greater honour could there be - on some level this was probably a coping mechanism
- She ended up rejoining the gladiators' guild some years later against her mother's wishes, so she has a strained relationship with her now
- But yeah. You know the rest. ARR noise
- She met Berry on no grand ceremonious terms - they ended up in a party together for some dungeon they had to explore and Soleil was just like "o h girl prettty" but then she was so sweet and nice and had such a cute laugh too... the other party members got rly annoyed at Soleil going so slowly through the dungeon bc she just wanted to talk with th pretty girl more

- They hung out some afterwards, just like sat under a tree and chatted a lot... yeah I think it was pretty much “and the rest is history” from the first time they met like. They liked each other straight away and they didn’t really beat around the bush
- Soleil also bought Berry flowers on that first meeting even tho she didn’t have a lot of money at the time and couldn’t Really afford it which tells you the type of useless lesbian she is

Character:

- In terms of how she comes across she’s very Bright, always big smiles, laughs a lot
- Mentally she is not necessarily bright. She is a useless lesbian and definitely can’t do maths. And has a certain amount of chaotic energy
- She loves other people and is super loyal/devoted/protective, it’s very like, you shake her hand once and Soleil Will Now Die For You. She’s always ready 2 fight for her friends
- This kind of reaches character flaw extents tho like. She is very heroic but to a self-sacrificial extent, she really is ready to die for you. She’s reckless and tries to protect others but not herself so much
- She is very intense in battle. She has :D mode and >:(mode
- Her worldview is kind of naive and single-minded, like she’s all about the honour of fighting for your land and doesn’t really consider anything else. And has it stuck in her head that dying on the battlefield is the best way you can hope to die
- This will change tho... I think after meeting her wife she starts to rethink this kind of thing. Like, she will come to realise that there are things she wants to live for etc
- She’s really good with kids understandably given she’s been lookin after her little siblings her whole life
- She loves her siblings a lot and is still in correspondence with them, although she’s kind of estranged from her mum, Solonie keeps her posted on how mum is doing. She babies Solin to hell even tho he’s like 17 now. But yeah she tries to visit them if she’s in Ul’dah for an extended period
- Her retainers (Ravio’li and Lasagnarr) are friends of hers from when she was training at the gladiators’ guild, they used to kind of poke fun of her in a bantery way when she was new because she was so little but then she turned out to be super strong and surpassed them both really quickly and got selected as a paladin and now they work for her and like. She’s their friend so they aren’t exactly mad but they’re kinda like. It sure do be like that huh
