Room for Rent
FAQ

Since too many people are too lazy to read the comments on the story, and my replies there, here is a handy list of Frequently Asked Questions. I will update it as I think of more

Q: Cloven hooves? What the hell?
A: They are not ponies, they are creatures from another dimension that resemble ponies, and call themselves ponies. Some fucktards snuck into a secret lab, found a way to activate some experimental Plot Device, and Wished that Ponies were Real. This is what they got.

Q: If they are not ponies, then why do you call them ponies?
A: The premise of the story is this; How much do real people look like cartoons? Not much, they are caricatures of humans. So to extrapolate, if MLP:FiM is the cartoon, what would the real versions look like? Now make it funny.

Q: I've read enough fanfiction to know where this is going... When will they ...?
A: Never. This is not a shipping, nor a clop story. The sexual innuendo and tension is in there purely for comedic value and drama. I thought it would be funny to have a pony crushing on someone totally not interested. You want clop, write it yourself, or check out one of the spinoffs that fans are writing. I made a group! Now i just need to find out how to run it.

UPDATE: Status is, maybe. In the distant future. I am starting to warm to the shipping idea, but it's not happening anytime soon.
UPDATE 2.0: Ok, it's going to happen, I just don't know when I will get the motivation to do it. Do not expect clop, but expect plenty of drama.

Q: I have this awesome idea for a story! Can I write something using your characters/universe?
A: You most certainly can. I consider all derivative works to be fanfiction in their right, so I reserve the right to pretend they never happened. So write away, but don't expect me to put your OC in my story, unless its really good. And don't forget to submit them to the group above!

Q: What's with all the stupid names for companies? You know they aren't really going to sue you.
A: I do it because it's funny, and a parody. Also, it reinforces the fact that this is an Alternate Reality, slightly different than our own. But mostly, because funny.

Q: I find X offensive, can you change it?
A: No. I find most things offensive on some level. Learn to deal with it, and you will be happier in life.

Q: Can I draw fan art of your stories?
A: YES! I love fan art, even the crappy ones.

Q: Why did you say Rainbow Dash is gay?
A: I never said she was. Louis assumed that she was. Keep reading.

Q: People keep using Sentient wrong! Didn't you mean Sapient?
A: Nope, don't care. At this point in the evolution of the language, the words are synonymous. The fact that you knew the meaning despite using the incorrect word proves my point. Deal with it.

Q: Alot, Prolly, and gonna are not real words, will you stop using them?
A: Ain't wasn't a word when I was growing up. It is now. Your argument is invalid. I will even define it for you. A LOT is a fixed parcel or group of something, be it land or a group of similar objects. ALOT is an undefined, large quantity of something. Totally different meaning and usage. Now someone tell Webster...

Q: Hi, I like your story. I like pony. want to be friends? (Yes, I actually get this, and its usually written even worse)
A: Fuck no. Get away from me, weirdo. Do your parents know you are on the computer?

Q: Can I help?
A: I need an editor, badly. Mine came down with a nasty case of LIFE. Feel free to send me a link to something you have written, and we can talk.

Q: Is this a self insert?
A: Hahahah! Hell no! Louis looks and acts nothing like me, or any of my other personalities. I actually based his character off of old sitcom straight men, mostly Ricky Ricardo from I Love Lucy. Most of the other characters are parodies of people I work with, however. Even the name Louis came from a little Guatemalan guy I worked with, who looked like he stepped off of National Geographic, and put on a suit. He really did pronounce his name "Loo-eese".
