

Verifications

The main purpose of a verification is to prove that the signer told the truth about information in the document under the penalty of perjury when it was notarized. The signer must swear to a 'supreme being' or 'affirm on their personal honor' that everything in the document is true and correct.

The signer must be physically in front of you when you perform the notarization.

The notary verified the signer's identity.

The signer may either sign the document before appearing before you, or in your presence.

The signer swore or affirmed that the statements in the documents are true. Although it is not required by law, it is recommended that the signer raise their right hand to emphasize the seriousness of the oath or affirmation.

"Do you swear or affirm that the statements in this document are true to the best of your knowledge?"
