

Hi DPL friends, this document is a place where we collect (and maintain access to) ideas and readings/resources related to Inclusive Design and Design Justice in Practice. This document is inspired by folks in our track who wanted to continue to collect and share ideas and resources beyond the week of DPL...and we're into that! Sarah and Amy will also add readings that they recommended throughout the week to this document. Can this document be shared outside the track? YES!

Inclusive Design and Design Justice Readings & Resources

Design Justice, by Sasha Costanza-Chock

Beyond Sticky Notes: Co-Design for Real, by Kelly Ann McKercher

Unpacking the Invisible Backpack, by Peggy McIntosh

Unpacking the Notion of Participation in Participatory Design, by Tone Bratteteig & Ina Wagner

Inclusive Design Guide, by the Inclusive Design Research Center

Inclusive: What is it? by Jess Mitchell

Emergent Strategy, by adrienne maree brown

Why Am I Always Being Researched?, by Chicago Beyond

Equity-Centered Community Design Fieldguide, by Creative Reaction Lab

Start Here, Start Now, by Liz Kleinrock

<https://www.consentfultech.io/>

Inclusive Design and Design Justice Ideas

(share your ideas for small and big moves that can advance the goals of inclusion and justice)

Quotations for starting conversations with faculty course builders and instructional designers -

A document gathering favorite quotes about online teaching, education, and instructional design. Feel free to comment or contribute as you feel comfortable. If you'd like a copy of the finalized document and/or agenda used for this event, email Stephanie Walker

Kelsey Dufresne's DPL: Inclusive Design and Design Justice 'zine - Kelsey says, "If anyone wants to add, change, collaborate, view the digital form of the zine — Would love to have as many collaborators as possible!"