When you search for an endorser's name, your query is sent to a backend service that uses third-party APIs (OpenAI) to find book endorsements. Queries are not associated with any user identity, and the app does not require account creation or sign-in.

The app does not display ads, does not use third-party analytics SDKs, and does not access your device's contacts, location, photos, or other personal data.

Apple's TestFlight may collect standard crash reports and usage statistics during the beta testing period in accordance with Apple's own privacy policy.
