It's not stated in game how Le'garde met Tianyi, or how Tianyi managed to join the Knights of the Midnight Sun. However, Tianyi had proved useful for the mercenary group, despite being blind, as he knew how to get information about enemy forces, and conjure strategies for many decisive wins.

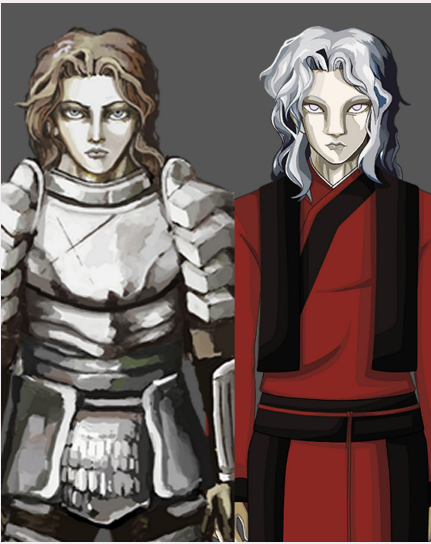

Tianyi is an NPC near the entrance of the dungeon. He can join the party if you save Le'garde. If you do not save Le'garde, and inform him of Le'garde's death, he will disappear from the entrance and reappear in Le'garde's cell. He will not speak to the player for the rest of the game. After spending 30 minutes in the cell, Tianyi, alongside Le'garde's body, disappears. It is unknown what happened for this to occur, though the assumption is that it played out similar to D'arce's S ending.

Tianyi's dialogue, like Le'garde's, is limited, and their dialogue together is reserved for cutscenes. However, there is an exception with Tianyi. If you do party talk immediately after meeting Nilvan, Tianyi will state, "I do not like her, and she doesn't like me."

He appears to be aware of Le'garde faking amnesia, but never does much beyond hinting at this knowledge during cutscenes involving Le'garde. If Ragnvaldr is in the party, and you do not stop him from killing Le'garde, you will be forced into an inescapable and difficult fight. It is recommended that you do not have Ragnvaldr in your party, or avoid the inciting cutscene, as a result.

In the dreamworld, if Tianyi is in the party, there is a brief, additional cutscene right before seeing Ragnvaldr's cutscene. Tianyi is seen discussing different plans with Le'garde, where the scene ends right after Tianyi asks the man, "Should I visit you later tonight, for a more private discussion?"

When you meet Le'garde in the void, there is a brief dialogue between Le'garde and Tianyi, where Tianyi will refuse to fight Le'garde, but beg to stay with him in the void, and Le'garde will eventually relent after hearing that Tianyi has been affected. In Ending C-II, he is briefly mentioned to still be following Le'garde, having been affected by the void in a similar way.

Tianyi makes several brief appearances in the second game, both as Kaiser's advisor, Hua Jingyu, and his wife, Hua Lili, or Lily, which is what most contestants refer to his feminine persona as.

During his appearance as Jingyu in August's confrontation, he will admit that he was Lily the entire time, catching August off guard and allowing Jingyu to escape. August will see the player, and discuss what had happened for a moment, where he'll admit that he had thought Lily was Jingyu's daughter, or even granddaughter.

As Lily, he will be seen catching up to Kaiser during the end of the cutscene where Pav confronts Kaiser. If playing as O'saa, Nas'hrah will make a comment about Lily, calling him a 'transvestite' among other derogatory terms, some in reference to the relationship between Lily and Kaiser.

There's a newspaper featuring a photo of Kaiser and Lily in the newest update, though what that newspaper will say is currently unknown.

Quotes

"I do not wish for you to be left here, the way you did not wish for me to be left in that cell."

— Le'garde to Tianyi, if Tianyi's mind is low

"You aren't one to desire being left behind when you're so close to your goal. I won't move on without you."

— Tianyi to Le'garde, if Le'garde's mind is low

"That lovesick transvestite is as pitiable as ever, following that piss baby bastard around just like before."

— Nas'hrah to O'saa, after seeing Lily interact with Kaiser

Fanon

It is a very small ship, with only a few dedicated fans due to both characters' unpopularity. Despite this, very few people attempt to argue against its validity, as there are several clues to point to the two being romantic partners. Fans of Tiangarde portray the two as heavily clashing together, oftentimes dysfunctional, yet still having a dedicated loyalty to each other.

Trivia (TW: trafficking mention)

- It is highly likely that Tianyi stayed in the void with Le'garde after his ascension, as he appears again in Termina in optional cutscenes. Along with this, Tianyi has dialogue that implies that entering the void allowed him to regain partial vision, which may have influenced Le'garde's decision to let him stay.
- Alongside Tianyi gaining some vision, it appears that he doesn't enjoy having it. In Fear & Hunger: Termina, his sprite model has near permanently closed eyes, instead of his open eyed model in the first game.
- There are several implications that the two slept together prior to Le'garde being sent to the dungeons. It is hinted at in one cutscene during the first Fear & Hunger game, as well as some dialogue from Nas'hrah during Fear & Hunger: Termina if you play as O'saa. Along with this, Tianyi implies that he was upset or even jealous when he had heard that Nilvan had been in Le'garde's dreams. Whether those dreams were from before or after meeting Le'garde is still unknown.
- Tianyi was born in a country in the east called Zhongguo, or Cathay, which is assumed to be the equivalent of China. He is implied to have been trafficked into Europa, but joined the Knights of the Midnight Sun sometime after either escaping or buying his way out.
