Motto

listen and discover, the right medical path for you.

Mission Statement

Aiming to educate students about several careers in the medical field by interviewing medical professionals through podcasts.

Purpose

- The purpose of this podcast is to educate the listeners on different medical careers that they can take.
- As 2 students aspiring to work in the medical field, we want others to discover different types of career paths they can take during their journeys to become a medical professional.
- Going into college or selecting their classes in high school, students are not informed of all the different options that are offered in the medical field except careers like doctors, nurses, and pharmacists.
- Through this podcast, both ourselves and others can learn more about the daily work life of a specific medical professional through interviews with special guests.
- This podcast will benefit the listeners in the long run by giving them career interests and a summarized description of what they would be doing if they pursue a certain career/job.

Why Our Name?

Our name is a play on words which are “Medical” and “Call Your Shots”. We thought this was appropriate as the podcast helps students wanting to pursue a career in the healthcare industry. The MediCall Your Shots Show helps direct students to achieve their career goals, and it is still important for them to make their own decisions hence the “Call Your Shots”. To further clarify, the term, “call your shots” is a term often used to express that someone has control over a process or course of action, which we believe is fit for our name because once students are interested in a certain career in the medical field, they have control of their actions to reach their goals.
