Karl, 35, is a 9-5 employee in a corporate job and his wife Becky, 31, has cheated on him. Karl found out that she has been having this affair for several months now and is unsure if he can trust his wife ever again or if she's even worth fighting for. Karl and Becky have a 5 year old daughter Jen, 4, and he fears the bad effects it will have on her daughter if they end up leaving. However, he is unsure of what to do next

Current Situation

Karl is dealing with anger, fear about his wife because she had an affair for several months now. Karl does not know the answer to the situation and is currently confused as to what to do next. Karl's mentality has also taken a hit because he does not know if he is a worthy husband or not anymore. Karl's wife says she wants to redeem herself but does not know if he can believe her.

Dream State:

Karl has dealt with the situation with his wife accordingly. He made the right move whether to keep her or not. If Karl decides to stay with his wife AND she redeemed herself plus never cheated again then he made the right choice. If Karl leaves his wife and she totally did not regret cheating and will continue to backstab him then this is the correct course of action. Karl just wants to do the right thing in this hard situation. He wants to be smart given all the emotional stress he is facing.

Roadblock:

Karl can't believe his wife right now that she is willing to redeem herself and stay the course. Karl needs guidance on how to trust his wife again even though she has been doing this for months behind his back. Karl can't seem to choose the right course of action too given all the emotions flaring up in his mind.

Solution:

Karl needs to do the right thing for himself and needs to see if Becky will comply with her word that she wants to redeem herself. Karl needs a proven way for him to fully trust his wife and reconcile. Get past the feelings of betrayal and resentment and see if they can come out of this strong. If not then, he needs to leave immediately. So basically, he needs to properly assess his situation clearly.

Subject Line: The Stone-Cold Truth After Discovering Your Partner's Infidelity

Hey Karl,

Undecided about your cheating wife?

No doubt it's difficult to trust her, when she spent months lying to you! She said she was going out with girlfriends but was fing another man.

As a result, your mind is filled with feelings of betrayal and anger that causes you to doubt your capabilities and judgment.

Regardless, the right course of action is still necessary. It is done with a proper assessment based on the following concepts:

- Do what's best for you (She doesn't attack you for being a boring husband)
- She puts genuine effort to repent (She backs up her words with actions)
- A stronger unity after (No use staying in a relationship if it can't grow)

When you see the possibility of these ideas in the future, there is definitely still HOPE

But to apply these insights, you need awareness and guidelines to make no mistakes about it.
