

You need a team Ben.

I've seen last month's Tristan Tate Advice video about university and I clicked with your ideas.

You have the ability to convey a very emotional story with your video and sound design.

I respect this, because as a fellow editor I know how long it takes to make high quality edits.

Your channel could take off any second now.

Are you prepared for the workload when your channel blows up?

Do you have a team around you that is ready?

"No one has ever gotten successful without a good team around them" - Andrew Tate

Only you can produce the content needed to grow your YouTube channel 50K and up.

You need a team built.

I can do many things to help.
