

Rodrick Lundergard

FBI Case File: 203875

Subject: The Pattakos Family

Supervising Agent: SA Rodrick Lundergard

In cooperation with: Interpol, FBI, DEA, DOJ

“The Pattakos Family”

DOJ-4231

No one is really quite sure who exactly “The Greek” really is. Depending on who you ask he’s a Greek immigrant turned drug lord or perhaps he’s not even Greek at all. What is known by the FBI and other global law enforcement agencies is that he and his cohorts of Albanians, Armenians, Hungarians and Russians are extremely dangerous and operate with a level of sophisticated secrecy. According to local legends back in Greece, “The Greek” was an up and coming arms dealer supplying both sides of the Greek Civil War and profiting immensely. His alleged home town of Volos, which had been loyal to the Monarchist Faction discovered that “The Greek” was supplying arms to Communist separatists and promptly ran him out of town. Roughly a week later “The Greek” returned to his home village with hired mercenaries and gangsters and proceeded to massacre the entire town leaving eighty four men, women and children dead in his wake. Fortunately the Greek Civil War would end with a Monarchist victory forcing "The Greek" to go into hiding for some time.

Eventually "The Greek" resurfaced this time in Austria where according to Interpol intelligence he seized control of an arms manufacturing company which he used to illegally exchange weapons with terror groups in Lebanon for narcotics such as Heroin and Opium. "The Greek" and his rapidly expanding organization began to partner with Italian Ndraghetta cells to distribute their drugs in Amsterdam and Prague. "The Greeks" organization now known as "The Pattakos Family" prospered from their booming business and soon they would reinvest their wealth into many legitimate companies. They established fronts through an overseas shipping company titled "Doukas Shipping" as well as several Chemical Companies like "Tempest Solutions" and "The Scorza Group". The Pattakos Clans biggest blunder however came when a French politician wanted to gain control of a mining company in Mali by hiring The Pattakos Family to muscle out local warlords and competing investors. Unfortunately this French politician only enjoyed a few prosperous months of his newly acquired mine because soon he was arrested by French authorities for malpractice and insider trading however he attempted to trade "The Greeks" identity for immunity. Sadly this was probably the worst mistake he could have made and soon enough the politician and his family were found dead from ricin poisoning at their villa in Marseille, France. The heat caused from the politician's death was enough to launch a continent wide man hunt for "The Greek" and his associates. Ultimately a plane crash over the Swiss Alps and information from Confidential Informants led European Authorities to believe that "The Greek" and his top lieutenants had perished in this crash and The Pattakos Family went dark for nearly 10 years until 1975.

According to DEA and FBI officials strange occurrences began in cities along the East Coast of the U.S. First in Philadelphia where an influx of extremely raw and potent heroin began being supplied to local drug dealers causing an epidemic in the streets. For nearly 8 months extremely potent and deadly heroin flooded the streets causing gang violence and overdoses. Before the bureau or the DEA could get any agents on the ground in Philly the suppliers seemed to have packed up their operation and moved because not long after the same reports began to surface in Boston. This time we were quicker with our actions and through Confidential Informants we learned the Heroin was coming from Corsica and was being laced with something called "Fentanyl". Sure enough within just a couple months the operation closed down again presumably to shift somewhere else.

Just a few weeks ago a street dealer in The Bronx met with Agent. Rick Mayfield at Battery Park. The dealer described how rumors had begun circulating through small-time dealers that new suppliers had set up shop in New York and were distributing packages to mid-level dealers. If our suspicions are true and "The Greek" along with the Pattakos Family have resurfaced in New York then we must prepare accordingly. It seems that The Pattakos Family have diversified and no longer rely on narcotics as their sole means of income and have moved into Human Trafficking mostly of Ukrainian and Croatia girls and also have made inroads in Construction and Labor Rackateering. As of now it is unknown where they operate out of however according to initial surveillance measures we have identified "Bugs" Georgakopoulos as some sort of lieutenant in the Family. Another wiretap used to record Albanian mobsters caught them discussing a “Greek soldier” by the name of “Vondas” murdering an air freight worker at JFK. This investigation must be treated with the utmost importance and secrecy.

Signed, Agent Francis Sinclair

Known Businesses:

Human Trafficking

Arms Dealing

Drug Smuggling

Labor Racketeering

Illegal Gambling

Prostitution

Murder for Hire

Known Associates:

“The Greek”

“Buggs”

“The Corsican”

“Vondas”

“Boris”

SURVEILLANCE:

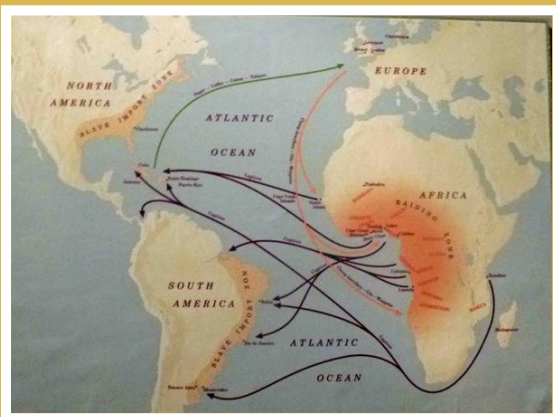

Miami PD seizes imported Opium

U.S Customs seizes Corsican Heroin

Alleged plane crash of "The Greek"

Pattakos Smuggling Routes