Expectations

This module will help you to respond appropriately to polite expressions.

Specifically, this will help you to:

1. identify the expressions for greetings and farewell;
2. match the pictures with the correct polite expressions; and
2. use the correct polite expressions for the given situation.

Let us start your journey in learning more about responding appropriately to polite expressions. I am sure you are ready and excited to answer the Pre-test.

Smile and cheer up!

Pre-Test

Directions: Color the happy face if the statement uses a polite expression. Color the sad face if it does not.

1. Excuse me. May I go out of the room?

2. I want to play with your toy.

3. Good morning, Mom and Dad!

4. Why did you break the plate?

5. Good bye, Leo. See you again soon.

Looking Back

In the past, you learned how to find connections with the story you read and relate it with your experiences. You may look at the character, the setting, or the events to see if it can remind you of the same things you have.

Read the statements below and put a check mark ☒ in the box if you can relate with the character. Put a cross mark if ☐ you cannot.

☐

1. Ana reads her story books at night.

2. The eagle flies high in the sky.

3. The children play at home.

Brief Introduction

Using Polite Expressions

We use polite expressions in different situations like when we want to greet a person anytime of the day or meet someone new. There are also polite expressions that we can use when we receive anything from others, offer help to someone, express apology for a wrong doing, or ask permission for anything.

Some of the common polite expressions we use are the following:

Good morning.	I'm sorry.	Thank you.
Good afternoon.	Excuse me.	Good bye.
Good evening.	May I borrow?	Take care.

It is good practice that we use these polite expressions in appropriate situations because it shows good manners and right conduct. If we use these
