

Amherst College Press Subvention Statement

Amherst College Press (ACP) is committed to a business model that never requires its authors to pay publishing fees.

However, ACP will accept funding from sources, including the author's institution, in order to support publication enhancements (e.g., technical innovations, translations) or to defray production costs.

Such subventions have no bearing on manuscript acquisition decisions or contracting.