

The Male Mind During No Contact

What is he thinking when there is no contact? Is he thinking about me at all, or has he completely forgotten about me and gone on, while I can not stop thinking about him? Is it possible to rekindle your relationship with him? Is it possible that I made a mistake by adhering to the no-contact rule?

Let me reassure you that the no contact rule was not a mistake; it was the best way to go. All of these inquiries are unavoidable, and they stem from our wounded hearts and shattered hopes. They stem from our grief and our worry of never experiencing that sensation we had with a specific person again.

The phrase "out of sight, out of mind" is ringing in your thoughts, and you can not help but imagine the worst-case scenario.

That is why, when someone leaves, our initial reaction is to go after them, get them back, and prove that we are wonderful together and that our love is worth sticking for and fighting for.

But that is precisely what we should not do since it would just drive them further away. Given that my female brain is built to detect deception, I realized he was only attempting to buy more time since he was undecided about getting back together. After a short time, I provided him my new job's address and advised him to contact me only if he truly missed me.

Whether it be sadness, a failed rebound relationship, or something else, some external element has to impact the male mind while there is no contact.

So, What Is The Male Mind During No Contact?

The no contact rule, in general, helps a guy understand how much he misses you. It piques his interest in returning. In a word, it demonstrates to a guy that you are not available to him anytime he needs you.

The no contact rule shows guys that you do not need a man to be happy since you are perfectly content on your own. When a guy notices this, he will understand you are a valuable woman and will be motivated to win you back.

This rule also assists children in sorting out their feelings, determining what they desire, and viewing things from a new viewpoint.

The absence allows guys to assess their attitudes and feelings for you. If you break that absence (if you contact him during the no contact period), it may have the opposite effect and cause him to leave for good.

If you want him to know how much he misses and cares for you, do not pursue after him. Instead, concentrate on reconstructing your own life, and the rest will fall into place.

By enforcing the no-contact rule, you demonstrate to your ex what he truly feels for you. You enable everything of what I have just said to be compounded by the next step he will go through, which is becoming aware that he may lose you.

He believes that you can go on and stay distant because you are not initiating contact.

That conclusion is what takes away his sense of control when he broke up with you.

As a result, he believes he has lost control.

It is at this time that he feels threatened by the prospect of losing you.

He may even believe he has lost you.

You felt a sense of loss when he broke up with you since you had no say in the matter.

By enforcing the no-contact rule on your man, you gain power while he suffers from a sense of loss.

He will then try to regain what he is given up with you.

Though nothing is 100% successful, this piece explains why the no contact rule works on men and how effectively it works.

Is it true that stillness makes a man miss you?

Will he miss me if I abandon him?

Will A Guy Miss You During No Contact?

Does he think about me while we are not in contact? Your ex will miss you if he sees you as different, glowing, and unconcerned about his absence.

If you continue to avoid contact, you will begin to feel less helpless, less invisible, and more comfortable feeling (all) of your feelings and being truly yourself. It may appear impossible, and progress may be slow, but it will happen. If you continue to avoid contact, you will, simply put, be known as "the girl who got away."

But perhaps not for the reasons you think.

How Does The Male Mind Work During No Contact?

If you become unpredictably unpredictable, unbothered, and at ease. If your ex starts looking for proof to feed his ego, such as evidence that you miss him, can not live without him, and will never be the same, but never finds it. If all he discovers is a leveled-up (not only physically, but also spiritually) version of the girl he used to know...

This will reawaken the usual hazy hope that you ARE THE ego trophy that would boost his self-esteem for the rest of his life.

Anyone who has gone through a relationship, experienced emotional closeness, and has the ability to recognize the good and terrible in themselves and others understands that there is no such time as a magical ego trophy that will always make you feel good about yourself.
