The device senses when you take a pull from the mouthpiece and heats up to vaporize the liquid inside.

Definitely a “high”lighter! But not for paper.

4/20- Day and time for pot smokers to gather and get high.

Trap Lord- The most notorious or well-known drug dealer commonly found in a shady area where drug deals are usually carried out. Urban Dictionary. Just replace 'Trap' with 'Drug'... Trap Queen, Trap Star, Trap King.... TLHP- Trap Lord HP- mob clothing

Loud- refers to marijuana- The I 'pot' loud is fairly obvious... so the Loud alone just refers to marijuana.

Kush- a brand of marijuana (Kr8zy Kush- 96% THC Most of the testing was done with THC levels of 3-6%; Today's THC is 20-30% for flowers, 25-90% for Dabs.

710 has meaning for selling drugs because flipped over it says OIL, which is implied to be a high concentration of THC.

According to Urban Dictionary, dab city is “a place you inhabit after partaking in too many consecutive dabs.” Dab, hash oil, honey oil, wax, 710, budder, shatter, are just some of the slang names for marijuana concentrates. These concentrates, in which the highly potent THC (Tetrahydrocannabinol) is extracted from the plant, are an oil or wax-like substance that resembles honey or butter and has THC levels ranging from 40-80%. E-cigarettes or vaporizers are often used to ingest these concentrates. The user takes a “dab” (small amount of the concentrate) and then heats it using an e-cigarette or vaporizer producing vapors that provide an instant high

Reports of teens using vegetable glycerin to mix with marijuana so they can vape it. Typical vaping pens use water to mix with tobacco but pens are converted and used for marijuana.

Ecstasy/Molly/MDMA: Other Information

Face Masks - Everywhere you looked was another face mask. Kandi kids simply wore their masks as bracelets until they made it through the gates. And then they slipped these beaded accessories on their heads. What's the problem with face masks? They are heavily linked to rave's drug culture, often serving as a way to hide excessive gnawing or other signs that someone has taken molly. People also line their masks with Vicks VapoRub, or METH to enhance their rolls. So banning face masks seems to have been designed as a deterrent to that kind of drug-centric activity. But these days, there are plenty of party people who wear masks for fashion's sake alone. Maybe that's why we never heard a raver complain about confiscations or being stopped for wearing one. Pacifier: for involuntary teeth grinding and clenching.

Stuffed Animals This rule is also a crackdown on the childish accessories associated with rave's drug culture. The problem for Ultra is not really the stuffed animal, but what it seems to say about the owner. Cuddling a soft, cute thing isn't only fun when you're sober, it helps on bad trips, too. Plus, tiny gorillas are just generally adorable when you're high. Honestly, though, the dangers are limited, unless the little guy gets used as a mule for drugs, a knife, etc.

Kandi Connection

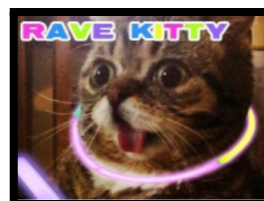

Drug dealers would wear beads and bright, neon colors so they could be noticed. Fans were attracted to the craft and it became an iconic symbol of dance music. One of the most important parts of the 'kandi' culture is the process of gifting and the term PLUR (peace, love, unity, respect). It's a handshake that signifies acceptance. <http://www.clubglow.com/uncategorized/the-kandi-konnection-whats-the-deal-with-rave-beads/>

Molly- referring to MDMA

"Roll" referring to eyes rolling

ALCOHOLIC DRINKS Four Loko, Twisted Tea, Sparks Blackberry are just a few of the flavored alcohol beverages whose packages may be appealing to teens and are frequently made with a high alcohol content and caffeine. One can of Four Loko has the alcohol content equivalent to approximately 4.5 cans of beer.

Purple Drank is a slang term for a mixture of a prescription cold medication, a soda drink and ice. Hard candies are often added for color and taste. The cold medication used contains promethazine (an antihistamine) and codeine. The effects of this drink last between three and six hours. In addition, in some communities, other homemade drink concoctions called "nutcrackers" are also popular among teens and youth.

Double cup. Two cups stacked on each other, filled to the brim with a cocktail consisting of promethazine and codeine syrup, candy (usually Jolly Ranchers, or Skittles), ice, and a soft drink of choice (Sprite, Fanta, etc.) "Po'up in my double cup."

Sports drinks or other colored and flavored drinks can be mixed with clear alcohol and brought
