Measures to protect complainants/informing of confidentiality Measures to protect complainants and witnesses

1. Consideration of complaints shall specify the level of confidentiality and protect those involved in accordance with the regulations on confidentiality of the government B.E. 2554 and sending the matter to the agency for consideration, the informant and the complainant may suffer. For example, complaints against civil servants should be considered as official secrets in the initial stage. If it is a secret card, only cases that clearly state the circumstantial evidence and witnesses should be considered. The notification of influential persons must conceal the name and address of the complainant. If the name and address of the complainant are not concealed, the relevant agencies must be notified and the complainant must be protected. As follows: "The commander shall exercise discretion to order appropriately to protect the complainant, witness, and person who provides information in the investigation from harm or injustice that may arise from the complaint of being a witness or providing such information." In the case where the name of the accused is specified, both the complainant and the accused must be protected because the matter has not yet gone through the fact-finding process and may be a harassment accusation that causes distress and damage. In the case where the complainant specifies in the request to conceal or does not want the name of the complainant to be disclosed, the agency must not disclose the name of the complainant to the accused agency because the complainant may suffer distress as a result of the complaint.

2. When a complaint is filed, the complainant and witnesses will not be subject to any action that affects their work or life. If any action is necessary, such as separating the workplace to prevent the complainant, witness, and accused from meeting each other, the consent of the complainant and witness must be obtained.
3. Requests from the injured party, complainant, or witness, such as requesting to transfer the workplace or methods to prevent or resolve the problem, should be considered by the responsible person or agency as appropriate.
4. Provide protection for the complainant from being harassed.

Measures to protect the accused

1. During the consideration of the complaint, the accused is not considered guilty. Fairness must be given and the accused must be treated the same as other persons.
2. The accused must be given the opportunity to fully explain the allegations, including the right to present documents/evidence.
