The programs and activities being conducted are based on community diagnosis. Whether these programs are part of community RLE or extension service, these are being conducted based on the community's identified need. Since parental and family education on child growth and development surfaced as one of the community concerns it has become the focus of extension service activities to reinforce the programs being implemented by different year levels relevant to their curricular concepts. The schedule of community engagement is based on RLE contact hours required for the community, while extension service contact hours is based on weekend availability of the community. However, what seems to be lacking the involvement of stakeholders outside the department of nursing as partnership with outside agencies is still to be realized.

There is a regular evaluation every after each activity (training/ seminars). Areas being evaluated are the venue, topics (relevance and helpfulness), quality of discussion or delivery of topics, effectiveness of speakers, and organization of the activity as a whole. Facilitators which include the students and their Clinical Instructors also conduct post conferences every after activity to discuss strengths and weaknesses. Areas that need improvement are discussed and addressed in the next activity. RLE related programs are evaluated on culminating activities at the end of each trimester, while extension service programs are scheduled for evaluation at the end of academic year 2024-2025. Impact of these programs on other stakeholders is part of future innovations that the institution includes in its plans. Once the on-going trimester ends and upon evaluation of strengths and weaknesses of the program, the institution will be presenting these details to possible partner organizations who will provide more resource opportunities for the improvement of the current program. Thus, the impact could be measured on a larger scale.
