

Google Calendar, marking yourself busy “all day”. This is an issue that people in the “Google World” complain about, and it seems like a bad design. But if you want to mark your calendar that you are not available all day, you can’t just give an Event a name like “Gone today” and click the “all day” checkbox below it. You also need to go farther down the setup for that Event and change the option from “free” to “busy”. See image below
