The edWeb Team: Hi everyone, thank you for joining us today! We will be getting started at the top of the hour. If you're not yet a member of the free Game-Based Learning community, you can join at www.edweb.net/gaming

Mary Ellen McFaul from United States: Hellow everyone!

Mary Ellen McFaul from United States: Hello

Kristi Szczepkowski from PA: I am new!

Melanie Rose D. Svensson from Thailand: hello from Thailand

Kristi Szczepkowski from PA: I want to incorporate this into my middle school curriculum for next year. I will be revising my curriculum this summer

Lynn with edWeb.net: Excellent, Kristi. We also have many other webinars in our free Game-Based Learning community at www.edweb.net/gaming...

Lynn with edWeb.net: and you can post questions in the discussion forums to ask other educators for feedback as you get this going!

Kristi Szczepkowski from PA: thank you!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: Hi everyone!

Adrian Posligua from Ecuador: hello to everyone

Beth Carl from New Holland,PA: Hello!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: Hi Lynn :-) Audio is great!

Kami Thordarson from Los Altos, California: Hi from Los Altos, CA!

allisyn levy from brooklyn, NY: hey everyone!

allisyn levy from brooklyn, NY: :)

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: this is your best audio yet :-) no background hum :-)

Bonnie Schwartz from NY: hello

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: http://historiquest.com/

Maria Lagares from United States: Hi to all

Rebecca Andre from SE Florida: great

Adrian Posligua from Ecuador: everything ok

Manuel Galv: Hello

Kurt Gaylor from Mcgregor, Iowa: Hello all.

Angela Henderson from South Bend: Hello- I am anxious to learn new strategies to implement in the classroom

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: http://submrge.org/

The edWeb Team: Thank you to our sponsor: Filament Games www.filamentgames.com and Thank you to our content partners: the Education Division of Software & Information Industry Association (SIIA) www.siia.net/education and ISTE's Sigve www.iste.org/sigve

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: SIGVE is an awesome ISTE SIG group!

Pam Jimison from United States: Hello! Pam from Rocklin, CA http://wjuedtech.wordpress.com . Thank you, sponsors!

The edWeb Team: Join the free Game Based Learning community at www.edweb.net/gaming for invitations to upcoming webinars, access to all of the webinar archives and slides, and for a CE quiz for all of our webinars.

The edWeb Team: If you're on Twitter today, use #edwebchat

Danielle Connelly from Norwin High School: Hello all! This is my first Webinar! Viewing from Pittsburgh, PA!

Lynn with edWeb.net: Yum :)

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: Welcome Danielle! You're in for a treat!

Danielle Connelly from Norwin High School: Thanks, Peggy! :)

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: very helpful distinction between gamification and game-based learning!

jolanta Nitoslawska from Mexico: hello from Mexico.. finally able to join.. very interested in this topic!

Anne Snyder from Rochester, NY: Hello from Second Avenue Learning in Rochester, nY!

Danielle Connelly from Norwin High School: Bienvenida, Jolanta!

Lynn with edWeb.net: Type your questions and comments for Jeff here.... He may answer them in real-time, but if he doesn't we'll get to them during the formal Q&A at the end

Lauren Gambino from Chattanooga: never thought of showing game trailers, thats a great idea

Maria Lagares from United States: Interesting

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: when you use games like these in social studies classes, do students have a hard time figuring out what is factually true and what is fantasy?

Rebecca Andre from SE Florida: any games with collaboration themes instead of war/fighting/killing?

Carrie R from OH: Like Goldilocks... "Just right" in difficulty!

Micheal Harper from Manor ISD: will we be able to get a copy of the presentation slides?

The edWeb Team: The recording, chat log, and presentation slides will be posted in the Resource Library of our free Game Based Learning community at www.edweb.net/gaming Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: funny Carrie :-) and true!

Lindsey Hill from Indianapolis: Is the audio cutting out on everyone or am I a lone duck here?

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: audio is fine for me--could be a bandwidth issue for you?

Lindsey Hill from Indianapolis: Is the audio cutting out on everyone else too?

The edWeb Team: Lindsey, if you are having trouble with audio try refreshing your browser.

Amani Muhawesh from United States: Mine is working fine..

Dan Franklin from Boston: I'm fine

Daniel Perez from Weslaco Texas: No audio is fine

jolanta Nitoslawska from Mexico: fine . even here

Suzan from USA: I'm fine.

Lindsey Hill from Indianapolis: IN a starbucks--probably the issue. Thanks Lauren Gambino from Chattanooga: Audio is fine for me. A copy of the recording and presentation would be great, thanks!

Angela Henderson from South Bend: is it acceptable to design a teacher-made game as an assessment after teaching a unit or concept

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: HEAT Framework:

http://www.loticonnection.com/index.php/more/frameworks/42-heat-framework

Anne Snyder from Rochester, NY: We are very excited about Submrge!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: http://submrge.org/

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: I was wondering about that! Thanks for clarifying--just proposing suggested changes and not actually changing the game

Lynn with edWeb.net: We will have a Q&A session after Jeff completes his presentation. Post your questions for him here...

Lindsey Hill from Indianapolis: This is all excellent for middle school and up--any suggestions for elementary kids aged 7-12?

Pam Jimison from United States: Wow. Interesting facts about the names!

Beth Carl from New Holland,PA: I was thinking the same thing as Lindsey. This seems way above my third graders!

Angela Henderson from South Bend: Agree

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: fun to have some non-tech examples :-)

Lindsey Hill from Indianapolis: Create a tutorial for Toca Boca example would be a great E/LA connectiong.

Lynn with edWeb.net: Bring that closer to the screen Jeff

Lynn with edWeb.net: Thanks

Lynn with edWeb.net: Better!

Himni Addi Nugroho from Indonesia: That's interesting..

Lynn with edWeb.net: We can go over the hour a bit, no worries Jeff

Lynn with edWeb.net: If people need to leave they can watch the end when we post the recording

The edWeb Team: The recording, chat log, and presentation slides will be posted in the Resource Library of our free Game Based Learning community at www.edweb.net/gaming

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: what a fun activity!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: you could color code those cards to make it easier to find "like for like" :-)

Bonnie Schwartz from NY: my 6th graders are competitive and would love these games

The edWeb Team: bit.ly/17XRIJI

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: huge difference between creating games and playing games created by others! tons of valuable learning in the game creation :-)

Scott Petri from Los Angeles: Any ideas what games would work in a modern World History high school class?

Melanie Rose D. Svensson from Thailand: nice idea to let our students explain the game especially for EFL students

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: great answer!! :-)

Lindy S Hudson from W.S Harlan: I have students describe the games they play and what they see. This is a great suggestion for Language building skills.

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: love it! put the kids to work using their brains to create the assessment games :-)

Anne Snyder from Rochester, NY: We have created a collaborative science game, and are very eager to learn about others

Amani Muhawesh from United States: Defintely going to do that!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: do you have a set of "guiding questions" that teachers might use to help their students sort out fact & fiction?

Daniel Perez from Weslaco Texas: will be looking into submrge site

Maria Lagares from United States: tks

Daniel Perez from Weslaco Texas: Thank you for your time

allisyn levy from brooklyn, NY: thanks lynn & jeff!

Amani Muhawesh from United States: Thank you!

Suzan from USA: Thank you! Very interesting.

Danielle Connelly from Norwin High School: Thanks Jeff and Lynn!

Melanie Rose D. Svensson from Thailand: thank yo lynn & jeff

Angela Henderson from South Bend: Great presentation!! Thank you!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: what do you think about games like Ayiti-Cost of Life? http://www.gamesforchange.org/play/ayiti-the-cost-of-life/

Kristi Szczepkowski from PA: thank you!! Jeff, prior to teaching, I was in Marketing at HERCO! GREAT town!! I love Hershey!!

Jeff Mummert from New Cumberland, Pennsylvania: You are all very welcome! Thanks for tuning in!

Peggy George from Phoenix AZ: fantastic presentation Jeff! Thank you!!

Kae Novak: Thank you!

The edWeb Team: The recording, chat log, and presentation slides will be posted in the Resource Library of our free Game Based Learning community at www.edweb.net/gaming

Himni Addi Nugroho from Indonesia: Thanks, Bye

Adrian Posligua from Ecuador: Thank you very much