

Dr. Shanthi Narla is an Assistant Professor of Dermatology and Director of Adult Dermatology Clinical Trials at the Medical College of Wisconsin. Her clinical interests include general medical dermatology, with a particular focus on atopic dermatitis, immunology, and skin cancer. Her research centers on chronic inflammatory dermatoses.

Dr. Narla has authored more than 60 peer-reviewed articles, abstracts, and book chapters. She serves on the American Academy of Dermatology's Patient Advocate Task Force and is Co-Vice Chair of the AAD's Atopic Dermatitis Expert Resource Group. She also serves as Co-Deputy Editor of the Wisconsin Medical Journal.

