

Battle of the strongest

Leonard dashes towards zodiac executing multiple kick's at the jaw and chest, valir rushes each kick emitting fire and sweat.

He sprinted towards Zodiac, attempting another kick. Zodiac caught his foot, but to his surprise, Leonard smiled and executed a backflip. They continued to fight fiercely. Suddenly, Valir rushed in, placing his palm on Zodiac's abdomen. [Incinerate]—his body ignited in flames, burning Zodiac. Seizing the moment, Leonard delivered a powerful punch to Zodiac's face, sending him sprawling to the ground.

“DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH!” He releases countless ore spikes each a different variants of colour. Valir form a skull imbued with fire. “Ghost of Tsushima!” He threw it towards Zodiac and it exploded, he thought this was just a projectile but it appears Leonard is inside the attack. His fist was able to make contact with his cheek knocking him away.

While the battle rages on inside the barrier, Shinra is worried what fate might plan to Leonard, that his doom is for sure or never. “Please I beg you, Yve! Let me join the battle! I promise I will be a great help!” Yve simply responded “I can't... I would not risk another life being taken away, if Leonard along valir and vale failed to defeat him, at least they can inflict great damage for us to finish him off, or we can send more fighters to finish the job.”

“Please!” She begged her if she'd let her join the fight.

Despite Leonard and Valir's impressive efforts, the tide of battle was slowly turning against them. Zodiac's relentless assault was beginning to take its toll, his strategy clear: wear them down, drain their mana, and strike when they were at their weakest. Leonard's powerful kicks and Valir's fiery attacks were formidable, but Zodiac's endurance and cunning were proving to be a formidable challenge. The two warriors could feel their energy waning, each move becoming more laboured as Zodiac's plan to exhaust them came closer to fruition.

Just as it seemed Zodiac might gain the upper hand, a sudden burst of energy erupted on the battlefield. Out of nowhere, Shinra appeared, her presence a beacon of hope. With a fierce determination in her eyes, she released chakra from both hands, forming large, guardian lion-shaped shrouds. These majestic constructs roared to life, charging at Zodiac with a ferocity that matched Shinra's resolve.

Caught off guard, Zodiac was forced to evade the powerful blows of the lion-shaped shrouds. Each attack from Shinra was precise and relentless, pushing Zodiac to his limits as he struggled to dodge the onslaught. The battlefield was now a chaotic dance of fire, fists, and chakra, with Shinra's unexpected intervention turning the tide of the battle once more.
