

Who Am I?

Information about person from Chapter 6	Who is this person?
I thought the new government would die without George Washington as president. I thought he was the best person to fill that office.
I believed that the first lady ought to be more than a hostess. I thought women should be educated and should teach their children to be good citizens.
I was the first Secretary of War.
I was the first Postmaster General.
I insisted that the U.S. repay all of its foreign debt.
I believed that paying off U.S. bonds at face value would only reward unscrupulous speculators.
I did not believe that Congress had the Constitutional authority to repay state debts.
I agreed to support Hamilton's debt repayment plan if he would agree to move the U.S. capital to the South.
I had little faith in the intelligence of ordinary people.
I believed that agriculture was virtuous
I agreed with Hamilton that the Bank of the United States would lend stability to the economy.
