Introduction	- Is it clear what is already known about this topic? - Is the research question clearly outlined? - Is the research question justified given what is already known about the topic?
Method	- Is the process of subject selection clear? - Are the variables defined and measured appropriately? - Are the study methods valid and reliable? - Is there enough detail in order to replicate the study?
Results	- Is the data presented in an appropriate way? Consider: - Tables and figures relevant and clearly presented - Appropriate units, rounding, and number of decimals - Titles, columns, and rows labelled correctly and clearly - Categories grouped appropriately - Does the text in the results add to the data or is it repetitive? - Are you clear about what is a statistically significant result? - Are you clear about what is a practically meaningful result?
Discussion and Conclusion	- Are the results discussed from multiple angles and placed into context without being overinterpreted? - Does the conclusion answer the aims of the study? - Is the conclusion supported by references or results? - Do the limitations inform future research?
References	- Are the references: - Relevant? - Recent? - Referenced correctly? - Are appropriate key studies included?
