

What can you expect after you apply for financial aid?

- A need-blind decision
- Financial aid based on need
- Regular communication about deadlines
- Scheduled optional webinars throughout the season
- Direct support from Clarity, the software system used to determine financial aid eligibility
- An aid award designated on your enrollment contract if offered admission

What is a need-blind decision?

The Office of Admission and the Office of Financial Aid run a parallel but separate process to ensure the confidentiality of the applicant. Once students are recommended for admission by the Office of Admissions, a list of accepted students is communicated to the Office of Financial Aid. At that time, any accepted student eligible for need will be notified the award amount through the student contract. The contract is published at the time of acceptance.

How is financial aid determined?

Financial awards are based on the eligible need as determined through a consistent and equitable process. The Clarity application enables all applicants to submit relevant materials for review by the Financial Aid committee.

Are any expenses beyond tuition covered?

For students with the highest level of financial need, or students that have earned a named endowed scholarship at admission, additional costs related to school may/will be covered.

How will I know if I receive support for additional school-related expenses?

At acceptance, you will be notified by our stewardship and scholarship administrator if you are eligible for additional financial aid, as well as what expenses are covered.
