Tips:
Start With Content
Remember that doing the writing for your website will take time. Before starting on the web design, plan and write the actual content.

Hosting Book Cover Images
Even though students aren't the creators of published book covers, it is considered "fair use" to display one alongside something like a book review. If you are using an image of a book cover you found online, it is suggested to download the file and re-upload it to Web Lab. You could also add your own photograph of the book. It is respectful to still cite the creators, such as the author or cover illustrator.
