

As an extension of God, your gift is through what you create here with the limited time you have on earth.

Therefore, my purpose in life is to die empty with all my ideas and visions realized.
I want to bring every thought in my head into reality.

Most people die full.
They leave behind:

- half-written books
- unbuilt designs
- unlaunched ideas
- undeveloped talents

To truly live, you have to create.

I don't enjoy any skill enough to devote myself to working on something I don't care about—especially:

- for someone else
- on a task that lacks meaning
- in a team of thousands where creativity is rarely valued

Life is short, and I don't think it's worth spending it comfortably at a large corporation where I feel disconnected from work.

I hope to enter the graveyard with an empty mind and body—having used up everything I had to give.

Relevant Sources

- Paul Graham – Great Work
- The Almanack of Naval Ravikant
- YouTube – Die Empty: Todd Henry