Description:

CNTE-001-Caliburn, formerly known as “Colonel Ivan Moroe” was a Type-INDIGO transhuman weapon, created by the UNGOC after Colonel Ivan’s treasonous betrayal, and promptly imprisoned within his new enhanced body, unable to act on his own. It was used by the UNGOC to fight off the Chaos Insurgency in 1974. It was armed with a prototype “Dark Fusion Cannon” - a heavy weapon of anomalous craftsmanship, capable of annihilating anything in it’s path, with just one blast. Over the years, the GOC has worked on improving upon it’s design. It all went horribly wrong in the year 1983, when the GOC attempted to power it up with energy from their “Dark Fusion Reactor” at [REDACTED]. That is when CNTE-001-Caliburn broke free from it’s own programming, allowing Colonel Ivan to regain control over his body, and disappearing in the explosion of the reactor that followed after CNTE-001 was overloaded by it’s energy. That is when the weapon was re-classified as KTE-001-Parallax-Typhon-Ex-Machina. Any further documentation on KTE-001 was lost in the reactor explosion.

After receiving power from the reactor, KTE-001 has received a number of abilities, which are listed below.

- Extreme reality bending capabilities (Type-Green Phase 4)
- Limited regenerative capabilities of Type-RED
- Moderate capabilities of Type-BLACK entities
- Supercharged fusion cannon, now empowered by the dark fusion reactor

It is currently unknown if KTE-001 survived the overload, or if it was destroyed by the reactor explosion, or it's whereabouts. In the event of it's discovery, DEIMOS protocol is to be activated, by evacuating civilians to safety, and activating the "Dark Fusion Warhead", strong enough to bypass KTE-001's defences.

"Good god. I still remember watching the incident from the security cameras. Ivan was screaming, begging for the pain to stop, until he broke free from his programming, and snapped and killed everyone at the reactor site. He then looked at the camera, i guess to... show us what he will do to us. He used his reality bending powers to impale the reactor staff, as his display of power. If he is alive, well... then i guess we will find out what the end of the world looks like..." - UNGOC Commander Vincent Brock
