Hey [CONTACT NAME],

What's the best time to land brand deals?

If you said "right now," you're absolutely correct.

Next month is Q4, which means brands are gearing up for their biggest spending season for creator collaborations and campaigns.

Your favorite brands are probably signing four and five-figure deals with creators this week while you're reading this email.

If you want to get in on this Q4 sponsorship budget reset, you might be interested in my friend Justin Moore's upcoming $10K Brand Deal Challenge.

(Justin has personally landed over $5M in brand partnerships and is helping 100s of creators land their dream brand deals)

Subject: Want to land high-paying brand deals this summer?

Preview: Here's what worked for me...

Hey [CONTACT NAME],

I used to think I needed 100K+ followers to land high-paying brand deals.

But as it turns out...

Brands actually care more about WHO follows you than HOW MANY follow you. A creator with 5K engaged followers in a specific niche can out-earn someone with 50K random followers.

And with the right strategy, you could be landing $5K, $10K, and even $25K brand deals in the next few months.

[Personal result/anecdote]

And that's why Justin Moore's upcoming $10K Brand Deal Challenge is such a cool opportunity for creators (just like you) wanting to land high-paying sponsorships.

During this 7-day intensive (Sep 11-17), you'll learn:

- ✓ How to position yourself as a strategic partner (not just another influencer)
- ✓ The exact email frameworks that get decision-makers to respond
- ✓ How to research brands like a pro (and find the right contacts)
- ✓ What separates creators who land $10K+ deals from those stuck at $500

You'll also get access to LIVE pitch audit sessions with Justin (which is probably one of the coolest parts of the challenge if you ask me lol).

When it comes to landing high-paying sponsorships, most creators are playing a “hope” game.

- ✗ Hoping brands will discover their content and reach out
- ✗ Sending generic pitches and crossing their fingers for responses
- ✗ Accepting lowball offers because they don't know their worth

But that's not how sponsorships work.

Or at least...

It doesn't HAVE to be this way.

After going through Justin Moore's sponsorship strategies (and implementing everything I learned), I found that [personal story/anecdote]

Want to start landing high-paying sponsorships too?

Summertime is a great time to be pitching brands, and Justin's $10K Brand Deal Challenge (loved by 500+ creators) will show you exactly how.

[Your niche/industry] creators, can we talk about brand deals?

I keep seeing incredibly talented [content creators/influencers in your niche] undervaluing themselves when it comes to sponsorships.

They're accepting TINY budgets or working for free products because they don't understand how to position themselves as strategic marketing partners.

[Personal story/anecdote]

The creators making real money from sponsorships understand that brands don't invest in follower counts, but instead in business outcomes.

That's why when you communicate how you solve a brand's marketing challenges, brands perceive and respond to your pitches differently.

If you want to start landing some high-paying sponsorships this summer, you might be interested in Justin Moore's $10K Brand Deal Challenge (Sep 11-17). Justin has generated $5M+ in brand partnerships and teaches hundreds of creators how to do the same.

It's seven days of live training for $97, with practical implementation strategies and expert feedback from Justin Moore himself.

Something I wish I'd understood earlier in my [creator/business] journey:

The most successful brand partnerships feel like genuine collaborations, not transactions.
