PASSAGE

Once upon a time there lived a young man called Ndondo in a village by the name Mbembe. The young man was very energetic and could do his chores enthusiastically. All people in the village loved him.

One day, he woke up as early as the first bird that is after a worm. He got ready for the chores and therefore got his outfits and left the house. The birds were singing in the morning you could confuse which chorale.

He had not gone even a mile away from his house as he met a gang of hooligans who beat him up and left him injured. Fortunately, he survived! He stopped waking up that early for it caused lameness in his life.