Title- From being one of the crowd to realising his full potential, Steve made one small change....

Walking into the office after outperforming his peers, impressing his managers and making 50% more money than everybody else, Steve knew he had made the right choice.

Steve was your average assistant manager in a supermarket in West Oakland, California, every day was a drag as he knew he was capable of achieving, earning and giving more but just wasn't sure how. His wife and kids could get by on his $47,000 a year salary but the bills were tight and a constant sense of pressure in the household took away the joy of spending time with his family.

Stepping out of his newly financed BMW and walking into his newly built suburban four bedroom house and smelling the freshly cut grass, Steve knows that despite the hard work and extra hours he had to put in, all of the sacrifices were worth it to give himself and his family the life that they deserve..
