Josh was just a young boy, around 11 years old when he saved his parents from an 'alien invasion'. However, it has been 4 years and he is now 15 years old, he has been solving extraterrestrial problems that have been unusually occurring since then but this time, a new nemesis was about to emerge with a plan of world domination, this was not going to be a simple task.

One day when Josh was practising to control his new power, the blue sky darkened and became gloomy as the sun vanished from the finite sky. Josh knew it was his time to rescue the world again. His dad was just too old to accompany him on his missions, so he gave his beloved son the special bronze star badge which he received right before the events of the 'alien invasion'. Josh's dad constantly believed in Josh and he knew he could do accomplish what he wanted but Josh wanted to end risking his life and staying with his family. After all, Josh was the youngest superhero on Earth, but he still knew that he had other things he could spend time with his family on.

Josh flew to the sky to scout the area for any unusual things in his town while he felt hesitation in his mind. Josh really persuaded himself to go back to his home but he had to save all of his friends who were inside playing their personal consoles, ignoring the fact that the sky outside has darkened. He found out that the library was where the kind old sailor was and the hospital where received his materials for his ship but he noticed the bakery was gone. As he gazed upon where it used to be, the library was half gone, its roof was torn apart from its walls. He flew on top of it to investigate anyone or anything causing the unusual occurrences.

As Josh listened carefully, he noticed and was certain that someone was there and as swiftly as he could, he turned his head to see his new enemy cloaked in a mystical veil and cape with a skull behind his back. The new antagonist disappeared out of nowhere, leaving behind the weapon he was holding, a shuriken. It wasn't a normal metal shuriken though. As Josh approached it, he felt the shuriken radiating a powerful aura and he could feel it inside his body and in his veins. As he moved closer he saw a bomb with about 5 seconds on the clock. He quickly touched it stressfully trying to deactivate it, but a miracle occurred. It suddenly stopped! He felt relief in his body. Before he threw the shuriken he made a copy of it using his powers. When he finished, he threw one onto the sky and as it reached the sky, something magical but dangerous happened!

A miniature black hole appeared that sucked the walls and the people of the library. Since he was levitating, it somehow didn't affect him and within a blink of an eye, the whole library, all gone. All was left was the desolate land that it used to stand on.

Josh had to end this as quickly as possible before his foe created anymore destruction in his city. He used his radar systems to locate his exact location whilst creating more copies of the shuriken to use against him. When Josh found his exact location in less than half a minute, he noticed that he was above him but at a different altitude. As he moved his face up, he was distracted by the structures getting sucked by something that was above him. He looked up and there it was, a black and bigger black hole, larger than anything he had ever seen or heard about. He threw one of the shurikens onto it and as it exploded, it took a part of the black hole away. Upon knowing this, he threw clusters of shurikens from different locations so it would surround the black hole but the cloaked person threw a shuriken below his feet releasing a poison gas Josh's sight was blinded.

Josh's point of view was obstructed and at this point, Josh had almost given up but he still knew he had to act quickly in order to acquire sight of the figure again. So he flew up into the sky where the black hole used to be but he saw the cloaked figure about to propel a shuriken, he activated his time stopper and was able to move away from the dangerous projectile. Josh threw an explosive shuriken and once it hit the cloaked figure, he was dropped to the ground like a fragile glass falling to the marble floor. He walked away in a lumbering fashion from Josh, he couldn't sprint anymore as he was too weakened by the weapon he himself made. Before he was too far, Josh swiftly threw a paralysis shuriken that would paralyze and stun him for a short time but as soon as it touched the figure, it disappeared with dust being left behind.

As Josh saw this, he knew he could create weakened deceiving clones but he could feel the same shuriken he threw piercing his body, paralyzing him. He fell to the ground and could not move or say anything. At this point, Josh caught a glimpse of the figure until his sight focused on the target. His mind persuaded him to give up but he still had enough energy to be able to throw one more shuriken. He grasped another paralysis shuriken from his bag with hesitation filling his mind, he aimed at the figure. At this point, he knew that he couldn't accomplish this tedious task anymore. Fortunately, it hit the figure, the force was just enough making the cloaked enemy paralysed. He then became unconscious, everything was pitch black.

Nearby survivors transported their young superhero to the nearby hospital where his injuries were to be cured before it was affecting Josh's body too much. As Josh wakes up, he sees the doctors curing him and aiding him before his next quest. Josh swore to himself to never take part in any missions again but at the same time, he knew it was worth it because he had also saved many lives. He was so glad of himself for doing what he has done that he even forgot about the black figure. He never gave up even in the hardest of times! This is the story Josh will tell his children and the people of the future generations to inspire them and how we should always persuade ourselves! However, that black figure is still unmasked and might be causing more trouble in other places and Josh is yet to find out its true identity.

Coda:
